NEBRASKA SPELLS "SPORTSMANSHIP"

The University of Nebraska is known and respected all over the nation for its red-attired fans, as well as its football teams.

Nebraska fans also have a nationwide reputation for good sportsmanship, at home and away.

"Big League"—that's the way Nebraska teams and fans have acquitted themselves in past seasons, and that's the same goal for 1988.

The University of Nebraska urges all Husker fans to continue this fine tradition of sportsmanship by extending courtesy to the visiting teams and officials.

All of us on the Cornhusker Staff salute our fans as the greatest in the nation and thank you for your support and sportsmanship.

Yours for Nebraska.

Husker Salute . . .

With 1:43 remaining in the first quarter last week against Kansas, Morgan Gregory returned B.J. Lohsen's punt 64 yards to the endzone to give the Huskers a 28-0 first quarter lead (pictured above). Gregory also caught one pass for 11 yards and returned three punts total for 85 yards. He leads the Husker receivers in 1988, with 16 catches for 175 yards and two touchdowns, averaging 10.9 yards per carry. The junior split end from Denver, Colo. also leads in punt return average with 16.9 each return.

Nebraska vs. OSU

The Scouting Report

by Tom Simons

TODAY: It's a battle of top-10 teams as 5-1-0, seventh-ranked Nebraska hosts 4-0-0, 10th-ranked Oklahoma State in the annual Homecoming contest at Memorial Stadium. As one would expect, it's a sellout, extending to 159 Nebraska's string of consecutive home sellouts, a continuing NCAA record. At least a share of the Big Eight lead is at stake as the Huskers and Cowboys each come in at 1-0-0 in conference play, and OSU, following last week's impressive, 41-21, win at Colorado, would be in the driver's seat for the league title and the Orange Bowl bid that goes with it, if the Cowboys win today. To put themselves in that position, however, they'll have to do something they haven't done since 1961—beat Nebraska (see "The Series" below). Oklahoma State, by the way, comes into today's contest riding a seven-game win string since a 29-10 loss at Oklahoma last year, and the Cowboys have won 17 of their last 19 games.

THE COACHES: The Huskers' Tom Osborne (Hastings, 1959) is 152-35-2 in 16 years as a head coach, all at Nebraska, and ranks as the second-winningest active coach in the NCAA's Division I-A. Dr. Tom's .810 career winning percentage trails only that of Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, who is 152-27-4 in 16 years for an .842 winning percentage. The Cowboys' Pat Jones (Arkansas, 1969) is 38-18-0 in his fourth year as a head coach, all at Oklahoma State. Osborne is 14-0-1 against OSU and his teams have won 14-straight from the Cowboys since a 17-17 tie at Stillwater in 1973. Jones is 0-3-0 vs. Osborne and the Huskers.

THE SERIES: 29th meeting in a series that began with Oklahoma State's addition to the then-Big Seven Conference football race in 1960. The Cowboys won their first two games against Nebraska (7-6 in Lincoln in 1960, 14-6 at Stillwater in 1961), but haven't won since as the Huskers have built an improbable, 25-2-1, lead in the series. NU has a 26-game unbeaten streak against OSU, including last year's 35-0 win at Stillwater, and has won 14-straight over the Cowboys since a 17-17 tie at Stillwater in 1973. The Huskers have also won 14-straight at home over the Cowboys, including a 30-10 decision in OSU's last visit to Lincoln, in 1986.

SCORING EXPLOSION? Another feature of this afternoon's contest is a matchup of the two highest-scoring offenses in the NCAA's Division I-A. Oklahoma State has ripped four opponents for 201 points and a 50.3 points-per-game average to lead the nation in scoring. Nebraska is next with 272 points in six games for a 45.3 average. The Huskers also rank second in rushing offense (385.7 per game), seventh in total offense (489.3 yards per game), and eighth in punt returns (14.0 yards per return). Helped by Barry Sanders, Oklahoma State is seventh in punt returns (14.8). Sanders, in turn, leads the nation in rushing (203.3 yards per game), scoring (22.5 points per game) and all-purpose yards (275.3 yards per game). Cowboy quarterback Mike Gundy is third in passing efficiency with a 167.3 rating, and his favorite target, split end Hart Lee Dykes, is regarded by many experts as the top wide receiver in the nation.

MILESTONE NEAR FOR THOMAS: All-America outside linebacker Broderick Thomas comes into today with 198 career tackles, needing just two to become the 13th Nebraska player to record 200 in a career. Of his 198 tackles (easily the most for an outside linebacker/defensive end at NU), 119 have been unassisted, the sixth-highest total in school history.

TAYLOR REACHES MILESTONES: All-America quarterback Steve Taylor had 121 total-offense yards last week at Kansas, despite playing less than half of the game, to increase his career total to 4,035 and become the fifth Husker to top 4,000. Taylor also ran for two touchdowns and passed for another to give him 50 career total-offense touchdowns, the third-highest total ever at NU, trailing only the 53 by Dave Humm and the 52 by Turner Gill.

Leading the Cowboys . . .

Oklahoma State, ranked 10th by the Associated Press, got another outstanding performance from junior tailback Barry Sanders in the 41-21 Big Eight win over Colorado last week. Sanders, the NCAA leader in rushing (203.3 yards per game), scoring (22.5 points per game) and all-purpose yards (275.3 yards per game), ran for 174 yards and four TD's in three quarters of play at CU.

Sledge's "Stake" is Steak and 8 Crown

by Nick Joos

After Nebraska's 56-12 victory over Utah State last year, Husker quarterback Steve Taylor promised his offensive line steaks every time the Huskers rushed for more than 500 yards. A year later, left tackle Bob Sledge is still waiting for two steak dinners from 1987 (515 vs. Utah State, 601 vs. Iowa State). After last week's 547-yard effort at Kansas, Taylor is down three dinners.

"He hasn't brought that (the promise) up this year," Sledge said. "He never followed it up last year, so we might just have to hound him a little bit."

Nebraska's ground attack ranks second nationally, and the teams' rushing total remains a good yard stick in which to measure the success of the offensive line. A year ago, Sledge, a second-team All-Big Eight selection by UPI, helped power the NCAA's third-best rushing attack (373.5 yards per game). Through the first six games of 1988, the Huskers have averaged 385.7 yards on the ground, and racked up a season-high of 547 yards in the 63-10 victory over Kansas last week.

"Basically, we are a running team, so the rushing figures determine the line's success. I think we've done pretty good so far, but hopefully, by the end of the season, we'll be in top form," Sledge said.

Last season Sledge played alongside guard John McCormick, who earned All-America honors in his final year in a Husker uniform. However, it wasn't the first time Sledge and McCormick played together, as the duo were teammates at Omaha's Gross High School in 1983, and helped Gross to the state finals.

When Sledge transferred to Nebraska from South Dakota he roomed with McCormick, and refers to McCormick as his "big brother." Sledge also credits McCormick with helping him improve his blocking techniques, which are crucial to the success of an offensive lineman.

"He (McCormick) knew what was going on before I did, and he tried to let me in on some of those things," Sledge said. "He was a real good player, who had great technique."

The Huskers initially recruited Sledge out of high school, but in the end asked him to walk on. Sledge declined the offer and decided to opt for the scholarship the South Dakota Jackrabbits had offered. However, after spending his first season as a non-lettered reserve at USD, Sledge decided it was time to pick up the phone and call Husker Coach Tom Osborne about coming home.

Sledge sat out the 1985 season, then lettered as a reserve in 1986 behind Rob Maggard and Keven Lightner, before taking over the starting left tackle spot in 1987.

To some fans who flock to the games on Saturdays, playing on the offensive line might appear to look easy, but Sledge has the battle scars to dispute that notion.

"A lot of fans probably think we're a bunch of big, fat guys, trying to push each other around," the 6-2, 270-pounder said. "It is a little more complicated than that. We have to know what each guy is doing, because there are calls coming from the other side of the line that we have to hear. There are plenty of calls that you have to know in a split second."

Those split-second decisions can make the difference between a 62-yard touchdown run or a two-yard loss, if the play isn't executed properly by the offensive line. That gain or loss can usually be attributed to the lineman's blocking technique, Sledge said.

"If you get beat on a block, it is basically just bad technique. I think we all have the capability of doing it right, but a bad step or position of your head, could mean you'll get beat on that block."

"But, the backs are so quick that if you can hold your block for a split second, they are gone. That's a big advantage we have."

The 500-yard rushing efforts and big plays the offensive line helps create excite Sledge, but he is driven by one goal that has escaped NU the last four years—A Big Eight title and a spot in the Orange Bowl.

"It's a strong incentive for me. In the past we've always come down to one big game at the end of the season. We want to go through the Big Eight undefeated and go to the Orange Bowl," Sledge said.

If the Huskers go through the Big Eight season unscathed and land a spot in the Orange Bowl, maybe Taylor will deliver on his promise of steak dinners to Sledge and the Husker front six.

Offensive tackle Bob Sledge paves the way for wingback Dana Brinson in the Huskers' 63-13 victory over Utah State.

Chancellor's Club

It is a pleasure for all of us at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to welcome alumni and friends to the campus for this very special Homecoming weekend. The theme of our festivities this year is "Celebrate Nebraska—Celebrate UNL" in recognition of the strength and vitality of the partnership that exists between our University and the citizens of this state.

We have invited all Nebraskans to join us on campus this weekend to take part in a series of faculty lectures, college and departmental open houses, performing arts presentations, athletic activities, tours, and other special events. In this way, we hope to share with you, our "stockholders," the wealth of talent and the quality of educational resources available at your University.

UNL is pleased to join the communities and organizations across Nebraska which have presented throughout the year a series of imaginative events designed to promote the rich heritage of our state and its promising future. Each of the events offered as part of the statewide "Celebrate Nebraska '88" has served to renew a strong sense of state and community pride and has focused considerable attention on UNL's contribution to the progress being made within Nebraska in education, business and industry, and throughout the culture and society of our state as we prepare for the beginning of the twenty-first century.

From the University's founding in 1869, it has been committed to a statewide mission of teaching, research, and public service on behalf of all Nebraskans. As such, UNL has always had a major role to play in the growth and development of this state by educating men and women for positions of leadership in the professions and their communities, by serving as Nebraska's center for research, and by providing an array of educational services ranging from the Cooperative Extension programs to the offerings of the statewide Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Network.

Homecoming is also a time for UNL to celebrate the return of its graduates and to recognize the vital personal and professional contributions they are making throughout our state, the nation, and the world. The University benefits greatly from the participation, loyalty, and commitment of the well-educated men and women who, following graduation, have continued to make UNL a vital part of their lives. We greatly value the strong and positive base of our alumni support.

To each of our alumni, friends, and colleagues, and to the citizens of Nebraska who have joined our celebration, it is a privilege to welcome you to the campus this weekend. I extend to each of you my best wishes for an enjoyable, educational, and meaningful visit to UNL as we celebrate the partnership between our state and its great University.

Marco Earns Job As Special Team Specialist

by Bill Doleman

Offensive linemen have long been known as the blue-collar force of football. But even offensive linemen earn honors every now and then. Ever hear of Dave Rimington?

And given a good back or a lot of weight, a group of linemen can easily make a name for themselves, no matter how "complimentary" that name might be. Ever hear of the Washington Redskins' "Hogs"?

However, every squad has a group of unsung players who forsake individual fame for the sake of team fortune. Nowhere on the field is pride more on the line than on the special teams where players are able to make a name for themselves through their individual efforts.

Nebraska linebacker Jon Marco is such a player.

"Oh yeah, special teams is the way I earned my scholarship around here," Marco said with pride. "It's a way for you to let the coaches know you're serious about playing and it lets you show how aggressive you can be."

To show his aggressiveness, Marco has one simple plan, given a "special" situation.

"If you get the chance, just go and knock somebody out." Enough said.

The senior from Bellevue, Neb., has been a fixture on special teams after coming off a redshirt year in 1985. According to Marco, the decision to sit out was beneficial in helping him mature as a player and develop his take-no-prisoners approach.

"We had to go against a first-team offense that had people like Tom Rathman and Brian Blakenship (both currently in the NFL)," he said. "If you can't hang with those guys, you're not going to be around here too long."

"You learn a lot just by the tempo you've got to play at and the attitude you've got to have."

Marco has more than just his attitude going for him. At 6-1, 225 pounds he is one of the Huskers' more physical players and has shown his versatility as a backup at both linebacker positions. Last spring, he emerged as the leading candidate for the starting spot opposite All-American Broderick Thomas but a bout with meningitis that hospitalized him last summer slowed him through fall camp. Despite making a name for himself on special teams and putting himself in contention for a starting spot on the Blackshirt defense, Marco found himself in a reserve role again.

"I've had some problems with my health in the past year," he said. "I lost 15 pounds in a week when I was in the hospital and they questioned whether I should play this season. I kept telling them I was fine."

"Two-a-days definitely took their toll on me. Then in the first game, I broke my thumb in three places so I really haven't been a hundred percent. You can't expect to keep your job that way."

NU outside linebacker coach Tony Samuel agreed that injuries hampered Marco's progress in the early season but now that's he's at full strength the Husker defense and special teams are that much stronger.

"He's really aggressive," Samuel said, "and now that he doesn't have to worry about the cast, he can use his hands much better. He's coming along now and if he can stay healthy, it's really going to help us because he attacks really well."

Injuries and illness haven't kept him from doing his job, though. Going into today's game with Oklahoma State, Marco has recorded 16 tackles this season, boosting his career total to 53 with 11 for 58 yards in losses, including a safety in the Huskers' 47-16 win over Arizona State, his first points as a Husker.

"That was nice," he said. "I'd rather intercept a pass and run with it in for six, but I'll take two any day."

Ironically, it was a rash of injuries that forced Marco to focus on a safer sport like football than the one he was already pursuing—motocross. His four-year career ended, or as he said was, "put on hold," prior to his senior year in high school when his football coaches at Bellevue West persuaded him to turn his interests to the gridiron.

"I broke too many bones," he said. "I've been knocked out and I've separated my shoulder four times. But I've never broken my leg though." Lucky guy.

While fracturing a femur isn't in his future plans, he does intend to return to the dirt tracks once his playing days are over.

"Once that stuff gets in your blood, you can't get it out," he said. "It's a crazy sport. You hit a jump at 60 miles an hour (laughs) and you land on somebody or you get taken out. The first turn is the worst because somebody's always getting run over or something."

"It's hectic compared to football."

Safe in the sanctuary of the football field, Marco, like all little boys growing up in Nebraska, has been able to fulfill a childhood dream.

"Oh yeah that, I guess it's true though," he said. "It was always in the back of my mind to try and play football down here and if I had the chance I'd take it."

"I guess it's been a dream come true. To walk on here and get a scholarship and then get a degree (in business administration) at the end of five years, I'm satisfied."

Known for his aggressiveness, linebacker Jon Marco dives for Oklahoma State running back Barry Sanders in the Huskers' 35-0 win over the Cowboys last season in Stillwater.

Athletic Director Bob Devaney

Bob Devaney ranks as one of the finest football coaches in college history, after his colorful 16-year career at Wyoming and Nebraska, and now ranks as one of the nation's most outstanding athletic directors.

Devaney is in his 27th year of providing drive, leadership and pride in the Cornhusker athletic program. He arrived in 1962, charged with the mission of building a successful football program, and he succeeded far beyond anyone's expectations. During an 11-year stint as Husker football coach, Devaney's teams won 101, lost only 20 and tied two for a winning percentage of .829. His career mark of 136-30-7 (.806) ranked him as the winningest coach in the nation at the time of his retirement in 1973. Devaney's teams won eight Big Eight titles and two consecutive national championships during the 1962-72 span, with his teams going to nine bowl games. His teams twice won four consecutive Big Eight titles.

Devaney's 1971 team, which posted a 13-0 record and twice played for the national championship (beating Oklahoma, 35-31, in the "Game of the Century," and Alabama, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl), has been hailed as the best college team of all time. Bob was inducted into the National Football Hall of Fame in 1981.

Since becoming athletic director in 1967, Devaney has brought the same success to the overall Husker athletic program that he brought to the football program. Under his leadership, Nebraska annually sets the pace in the Big Eight all-sports race with solid entries in all men's and women's sports.

Under Devaney's guidance, Memorial Stadium has been enlarged, artificial turf has been installed and replaced three times, a stadium office building was constructed, and sports facilities such as the Otto and Gladys Baumann Baseball Complex, Buck Beltzer Baseball Stadium, Ed Weir Track, a new track office building and the women's softball stadium have come into being.

It was Devaney's leadership, working in conjunction with the Nebraska Legislature, that resulted in the passage of a special cigarette tax to provide funds for a new athletic complex, the beautiful basketball arena, indoor track, swimming and other sports building, which opened on the State Fair Grounds in 1976. University of Nebraska Regents recognized Devaney's contributions to that four-and-a-half-acre structure by naming it the Bob Devaney Sports Center in 1978.

Devaney currently spearheads a fundraising drive to provide the University of Nebraska with a new Faculty-Student Recreation Center, as well as the Cook Pavilion indoor workout facility.

Devaney received many other honors during his coaching career. He was named Coach of the Year by the Walter Camp Foundation, the Football Writers of America, Football News and the Washington TD Club in 1971; and he was tabbed to coach in numerous all-star games, such as the Hula Bowl, Coaches All-American, Blue-Gray and East-West Shrine. He also coached the College All-Stars against the Dallas Cowboys in the 1972 Chicago game.

A graduate of Alma (Michigan) College in 1939, Devaney served as a high school coach at Big Beaver, Keego Harbor, Saginaw and Alpena in Michigan before joining Biggie Munn and Duffy Daugherty at Michigan State. In 1957 he became head coach at Wyoming, where his teams posted a 35-10-5 record.

Devaney is married to the former Phyllis Wiley. They have a son, Mike, and a daughter, Pat, both graduates of the University of Nebraska. Bob and Phyllis also have two grandchildren. □

Tom Osborne: Head Football Coach/ Assistant Athletic Director

Husker Coach Continues as Winner and Leader

Tom Osborne heads into his 16th season as a head coach—all at Nebraska—once again ranked among the "Big Three" of college football.

Osborne takes a remarkable 147-34-2 record into 1988. That makes him No. 3 among the winningest active coaches in Division I-A of the NCAA, and he's just a blink away from the No. 2 spot held by Penn State's legendary Joe Paterno.

While Dr. Tom has long held "legendary" status in Nebraska, his fame is spreading throughout the nation as he continues to build Big Eight powerhouses each fall. During the past 15 years, Osborne's teams all have finished in the Top 10 and all have gone a-bowling, while averaging 10.2 wins per season. No other coach in the 1980s can make that claim.

Osborne's .8087 winning percentage trails only Paterno's mark of .8093 and Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer's .843 among the active coaches in I-A. Since succeeding Hall of Fame coach Bob Devaney in 1973, Tom has won nine or more games in every season.

During the past eight years, his teams have won the national rushing title four times, and have finished second once and third twice. In 1987, Osborne's Huskers were third in national rushing, third in scoring and second in total offense.

With Tom at the helm, Nebraska has run its string of consecutive bowl bids to 19 and its Top-10 streak to 18, both current national records.

Adding even more luster to Osborne's coaching career is the fact that the Cornhuskers have made history by producing three consecutive Outland Trophy winners (Dave Rimington in 1981 and 1982 and Dean Steinkuhler in 1983) and two consecutive Lombardi winners (Rimington in 1982 and Steinkuhler in 1983), while also winning the 1983 Heisman Trophy (Mike Rozier).

During Tom's 15-year career, the Huskers have produced 32 All-America players and 25 Academic All-America players, as well as seven NCAA postgraduate scholarship winners and three National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete recipients.

Only two Osborne-coached teams have finished lower than second in the Big Eight—the 1976 team, which tied for fourth but was only one game out of a first-ever three-way tie for first, and his 1986 10-2 team, which lost to Colorado and Oklahoma. His teams have won or shared in the conference title six times in the past 13 years (1975, 1978, 1981, 1982, 1983 and 1984).

He has three times been named Big Eight coach of the year (1975, 1978 and 1980), and five times been named District VI coach of the year by the American Football Coaches Association and Kodak (1978, 1979, 1980, 1983 and 1987). In addition, in 1978 he was named Bobby Dodds national coach of the year by the Atlanta Quarterback Club and Delta Air Lines for his efforts toward the advancement of the higher and more notable aspects of college coaching. And in 1983 Football News named Osborne national coach of the year.

In 1982 he was the first recipient of the Distinguished Nebraska-lander Award from the Nebraskaland Foundation, and in 1983 he was named national coach of the year by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Osborne, who graduated from Hastings College in 1959 before logging pro time with the Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers, joined Devaney as an assistant in 1962. In 1965 he received his Ph.D. in educational psychology, then chose football coaching as a career. He coached the Husker receivers and helped build the NU offense into one of the most potent in the nation during the 1970 and 1971 national championship years.

While Osborne was a newcomer to the head coaching ranks in 1973, he was no stranger to Nebraska football. Osborne was a member of Bob Devaney's incomparable staff for 11 years—the last six as a key organizer of a steamroller offense.

During his tenure on the Devaney staff, Osborne headed the passing game strategy and coached the receivers. When Devaney announced his retirement from coaching in favor of full-time athletic director duties following the 1971 season, he named Osborne as his successor. Osborne served as assistant head coach and director of recruiting in Devaney's final campaign in 1972, then took the head coaching reins in 1973.

An outstanding high school athlete at Hastings (Neb.) High School in the mid-1950s, Osborne was named Nebraska prep athlete of the year. Passing up major-college offers, Osborne became a star quarterback and basketball player for Hastings College, where both his father and grandfather had matriculated. At Hastings he played both football and basketball for Coach Tom McLaughlin, who was elected to the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame in 1982. In 1959 Osborne was named state college athlete of the year—the first athlete in Nebraska history to win both the high school and the college honors.

In 1962 he secured a position as a graduate assistant on Bob Devaney's Husker staff. He served in that capacity until he obtained his master's degree in 1963. Continuing his dual role in education and football coaching, Osborne gained his doctorate in 1965 and, holding the academic rank of instructor of educational psychology at Teachers College, was a part-time coach.

Osborne, born Feb. 23, 1937, elected to pursue coaching full-time in 1967 and became the Huskers' receivers coach, a decision that NU fans have applauded since.

Married to the former Nancy Tederman, Osborne is the father of a son, Mike, and two daughters, Ann and Susie. Mike followed in his father's footsteps by playing football at Hastings College, where he was a quarterback. He is now a graduate student. □

TOM OSBORNE'S CAPSULE BIOGRAPHY

Years at Nebraska: Twenty-six, with 15 years as head coach and a record of 147-34-2. Tenth year as an assistant athletic director. Osborne served on Coach Bob Devaney's staff from 1962 to 1966 as a graduate assistant, then became full-time receivers coach in 1967, was elevated to assistant head coach in January 1972, when Devaney selected him as his successor, and took the head coaching reins in 1973.

Previous Coaching Experience: None prior to joining the Nebraska staff in 1962.

Playing Career: High School—three years at Hastings (Neb.) where he was an outstanding athlete in several sports; named Nebraska high school athlete of the year. College—four years as star quarterback for Hastings College; also twice named state college athlete of the year (first person to win both the prep and college honors). Professional—three years, two with Washington Redskins and one with San Francisco 49ers as a flankerback.

Education: Hastings (Neb.) High School. B.A. from Hastings College in 1959. M.A. from University of Nebraska in 1963. Ph.D. from University of Nebraska in 1965.

Military Service: U.S. Army.

Born: Feb. 23, 1937

Family: Coach Osborne is married to the former Nancy Tederman and is the father of a son, Mike, and two daughters, Ann and Susie.

University of Nebraska: Innovation and Excellence for America's Future

Two years after acquiring statehood, Nebraska founded the University of Nebraska in Lincoln as both its land-grant institution and its state university. Since 1869 the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) has been a catalyst in Nebraska's development as an imaginative, industrious and ingenious state.

Today the partnership between Nebraska and its university is taking on new dimensions. UNL has redefined and expanded its traditional land-grant role to reflect Nebraska's need for new knowledge in a wide spectrum of rapidly advancing scientific, technological, agricultural and business-related areas.

As Nebraska's major research and most comprehensive undergraduate university, UNL serves as the primary source of new knowledge in the academic disciplines and provides education of the highest quality for future scientists and engineers, as well as for students in the liberal arts and professions. UNL researchers have achieved national stature for doing work in the fields of electro-optical measurements, mass spectrometry, biotechnology, biochemistry, climatology, atomic and solid-state physics, materials science, water quality, agricultural marketing and economics, communication disorders, computer science, political analysis, history and English, among others.

To meet the demands of scholarship and service, UNL has taken an interdisciplinary approach to complex research problems. In recent years the University has established research centers in the areas of productivity and entrepreneurship, franchise studies, engine technology, electro-optical measurements, biotechnology and biochemistry, food processing technology, Great Plains studies and agricultural product development, marketing and utilization.

Informational support for university teaching and research includes a library system with more than two million volumes, an on-campus network of main-frame and personal computers, and participation in MIDNET, a vital link to the National Science Foundation's supercomputer network.

UNL's 1,100-member faculty is one of Nebraska's most vital resources. Nationally respected for their expertise and scholarship, UNL faculty bring to the classroom a commitment to providing the University's 25,000 undergraduate and graduate students with the intellectual skills and the breadth of knowledge they will require as community and professional leaders in this era of accelerated technological and social change.

As a result of a two-year study, UNL has initiated the Program for the Advancement of General Education. Undergraduate programs are being strengthened as curricula are refined to provide a common learning experience for UNL's students. Substantial attention is being focused on the development of skills that a citizen of

by Thomas O'Toole,
The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

Pity the huddle. Of all the elements in a football game, the huddle is perhaps the most unappreciated, overlooked and ignored. Fans don't cheer for a perfectly aligned huddle—be it round, oval or tiered—they only cheer for the perfectly executed play. They don't jump to their feet when a team enters the huddle, only when it comes out of one.

In fact, no one really pays any attention at all to the huddle. When the center gives the signal to huddle, usually with one arm extended in the air, that's also the signal for fans to talk, fraternity guys to steal a kiss and public address announcers to get into the act.

What a shame. For the huddle is an art form, an integral part of game strategy, a facet virtually unique to football. It is a veritable cabinet meeting, where 11 men gather to decide upon their course of action.

Coach Frank Leahy considered the huddle so important he devoted three pages to it in his 1950 book, "Notre Dame Football—The I Formation." Wrote Leahy: "We spend a great deal of time on the huddle because we feel this phase must be perfect in order to get in more plays per minute. The team that runs the most plays has the best chance of scoring the most points."

For those old enough to remember, the most remarkable moment in the 1929 Rose Bowl came when California's Roy Reigels recovered a Georgia Tech fumble and ran the wrong way—66 yards later he was stopped inside the Cal one-yard line.

But for Bill Hartman, still the University of Georgia kicking coach at 73, that game is memorable for a description of the huddle by legendary radio announcer Bill Munday.

"Huddles weren't really being used all that much then," recalled Hartman, who listen to the game on NBC Radio. "Every time Georgia Tech went into its huddle, Bill Munday would refer to it as Tech's 'crap-shoot formation.' I'll never forget it."

What better analogy for the huddle than an old-fashioned, back-alley crap shoot, where a group gathers around a man who is on one knee rolling dice. After all,

Dana Johnson/FOCUS WEST

The huddle is designed not only to call the plays, but to bring the team together.

Jim Turner

a football play is nothing if not a roll of the dice. Every snap is a gamble.

Huddles were relatively rare at the time of Munday's description, but finally came into vogue outdoors in the 1920s. "College Football USA 1869-1971," by John D. McCallum and Charles Pearson, describes a huddle that was used indoors at the Coliseum in Chicago by Alonzo Stagg during the Michigan-Chicago game on Thanksgiving Day, 1896. Stagg grouped his players together to call the signals because of crowd noise.

Until then, the team called its signals at the line of scrimmage, much like teams today use audibles. According to the book, Bob Zuppke of Illinois "claimed to have used the first huddle [outdoors] in 1921," citing crowd noise and distraction from opposing players, who would yell to disrupt the signals.

The rules committee considered banning huddles in the early 1920s, but "College Football" says "the 1923 Illinois team with Red Grange made it stick." The book also says others date the huddle to Army in 1910.

Once accepted, huddles evolved from the familiar oval to a two-tiered alignment known as the "choir boy" formation, and back to, oddly, no huddle, employed by wide-open passing teams electing to call plays at the line of scrimmage. A few years ago, the no-huddle offense was thought to be an innovation. Instead, it was only football returning to its roots.

Huddles come in three basic shapes: oval (or round), tiered and V. They are designed for optimum communication between the quarterback and the rest of the offense and for an efficient approach to the line of scrimmage. For that reason, offenses huddle almost exactly as they are aligned on the line of scrimmage, with guards next to the center, tackles next to the guards and ends next to the tackles.

The Oval: This is the most traditional of huddles, the one used in every touch

Army's "Lonesome End," Bill Carpenter, had little use for the huddle.

football game ever played. But even with this huddle there are subtle differences from team to team.

At Tennessee, for instance, the quarterback enters the huddle from either side, depending on which way the Vols are headed. That gives him the best vantage point to see his own sideline and receive the play by hand signals.

At Vanderbilt, the quarterback always enters the huddle from the back after receiving the play either by signals or from another player sent in by the coaches.

The old Baltimore Colts altered their oval huddle just a little to make it resemble a horseshoe. Some of the more disciplined teams would even demand that all the players' feet be pointed directly at the quarterback.

The Tier: Also known as the "choir boy" or "typewriter" huddle. With this formation, the quarterback stands directly in front of two rows of players, usually linemen in the front and receivers and runners in the back. This enables every player to watch the quarterback's face as he calls the play, provided, of course, the linemen remember to bend over so the backs can see.

This huddle, depending on the team involved, can face either one of the sidelines or the other team. At Ohio State, the Buckeyes huddle facing the defense. The quarterback stands with his back to the line of scrimmage and calls the plays.

The Buckeyes add a different twist to a tiered offensive huddle—holding hands. That is more common on defense and in an oval huddle, where it is obviously easier.

"All 11 guys do it," said Ohio State offensive coordinator Jim Colletto. "It's just a gesture that says, 'We're all in this together.' It kind of makes you realize you rely on everyone else. It's unusual that men can show emotion for one another without somebody looking at you kind of weird."

The V: This is rare, which is probably what makes it interesting. The 10 offensive players line up in two lines that converge on a point to make the V shape. The quarterback enters at the open end, with his back to the opposing team, to call the plays.

At Alabama a few seasons ago, the way quarterback Mike Shula stood in the huddle made the V resemble an A, which every Alabama fan knows is the first letter in football.

This formation allows players easy access to the line of scrimmage as they file forward.

Gimmick Huddles: Football coaches love a good gimmick and, wanting to be distinct or trying for a strategic edge, they even toy with huddles. The powerful Army and Duke teams popularized what was known as the "lonesome end." With this formation, 10 offensive players huddled. The 11th, a wide receiver, stayed flanked far away, receiving the play via signals. Sometimes the "lonesome end" would catch a sleepy defense off guard and find himself uncovered.

Teams also try a variation of this called the shoestring play, where a receiver bends over as if tying his shoestring, hoping the

Too bad more people don't take advantage of it.

TWA's First Class Sleeper Seat.

When you stretch out in TWA's First Class Sleeper Seat, we urge you not to get too comfortable. At least not right away. We wouldn't want you to miss any of the amenities that make our First Class so opulent. And by the way, only TWA offers its luxurious sleeper seat on every domestic and international widebody flight.

TWA's First Class Service.

Before takeoff, you'll be offered complimentary cocktails. Then, on international flights, come the hors d'oeuvres. Everything from American Sturgeon Caviar to Pâté de Canard.

And on all flights you will discover gourmet entrées served to you on china. If you can, save room for dessert or an after-dinner drink.

You won't be disappointed.

TWA's Personal Service Commitment.

TWA is determined to bring you the best personal service in the airline industry. So we've assigned an In-Flight Service Manager to every flight to make sure your trip is as hassle-free and comfortable as possible.

In addition, our Chairman of the Board has put together a Quality Control Team. A group of 30 very picky people who fly TWA, assessing the service they receive, on a checklist of over 100 service items. They report directly back to him with their comments, good and bad. And if anything needs improvement, it gets improved. Fast.

Because at TWA, great service is a top priority.

defense will not notice him, while the rest of the team huddles.

Sometimes teams use the "swinging gate" huddle, where only the quarterback stands near the ball. The rest of the team gathers 10 yards farther down the line of scrimmage. The quarterback then picks up the ball and shovels it to a running back. If the scam works correctly, the defense will be caught off guard and the runner will have nine blockers in front of him.

Several teams use a variation of this on extra points, setting up the possibility of a trick two-point conversion.

Defensive Huddles: For the most part these are tiers just across the line from the ball. One linebacker will stand in front of the players to call the signals. There are variations. Arizona State head coach Larry Marmie, a former defensive coordinator, prefers to have two linebackers in front of the huddle. One will say to the team, "eyes," drawing their attention to the front. He then will give the down and distance of the upcoming play. The other linebacker will give the formation.

Last season, Georgia had trouble playing pass defense. In order to place the cornerbacks and safety in position more quickly, defensive coordinator Bill Lewis devised a separate huddle for his backs. They met roughly 10 yards behind the main huddle, receiving signals from the sideline.

Huddle Decorum: You won't find this in Emily Post's book, but every football player knows the proper etiquette. The most stringent rule is no one speaks in the huddle except the quarterback. This is done out of respect and necessity. With a 25-second clock going, time can't be wasted arguing about the play.

Breaking the Huddle: Every huddle worth its salt will break with a crisp clap of hands. Coaches never hesitate in practice to send a team back into the huddle if the break has been less than enthusiastic. Often, wide receivers will leave a few seconds prior to the rest of the unit in order to reach their spots before the snap. Some offenses send the center out first, for no apparent reason other than to give him a moment in the spotlight.

Even breaking the huddle, however, can have strategic overtones. A high school in North Carolina used to send its linemen out of the huddle in a crabbing manner, on all fours, so they would be ready when they reached the line. At Notre Dame, Leahy, ever the innovator, turned the break into a two-step process. The quarterback called "turn," which meant everyone in the huddle would face the line of scrimmage. After a pause to survey the defensive alignment, the center would call "up," and the players would move to their spots.

Georgia coach Vince Dooley remembers Bear Bryant's Alabama teams in the 1960s using a similar tactic.

"It was a double huddle," said Dooley. "They'd break, go to a yard from the line and stop. Then they'd clap and everybody would quickly run to a spot and then they'd snap the ball. Actually, Coach Bryant was only trying to hide the fact that he was flip-flopping his blockers and running behind the same ones all the time because they were his strongest."

Perhaps the most intriguing break of a huddle was done when UCLA ran the Single-Wing. The Bruins would flip-flop their linemen depending on which side they wanted their strength on. If they went right, they would break out of the huddle normally. If they went left, they would exit in a serpentine formation, winding around to place the players in the correct spots.

"What you had was the right end or 'strong end' going out first if you wanted a strong left formation," said veteran coach Tommy Prothro, an assistant at UCLA in the 1950s. "Everyone would wind out behind him. It was done so everybody didn't run into everybody going to the line."

Hartman, remembering another description of UCLA's serpentine, said, "Some people called it 'Ring Around the Rosy.'"

After all, football is just a game. □

Brown, the second Notre Dame player to win the trophy (the first was Ken MacAfee in 1977), was chosen because he exemplified the qualities Walter Camp wanted to inspire. Qualities such as self-discipline, unselfish team play and a desire to excel. He finished the 1987 season with 144 yards rushing, 846 yards receiving, 401 yards in punt returns and 456 yards in kick-off returns.

Foundation president Benjamin J. Tortora said Coach MacPherson "demonstrated ability to inspire ultimate performance by the players placed under his charge while, at the same time, instilling in them the paramount importance of sportsmanship and fair play." Qualities Walter Camp himself would have approved of.

For nearly half a century, from 1876 until his death in 1925, Camp was a prominent figure in American football, giving the game direction and character.

Great rarities in sports are those athletes who use their originality and daring to become superstars, even though they lack some of the physical qualities you normally associate with their sport.

One thinks of hockey's Wayne Gretzky, basketball's Larry Bird—and football's Hugh Campbell.

The dictionary defines "dynasty" as "uninterrupted rule over a considerable period of time." Since "uninterrupted" is key to the definition, it's easy to see why coaching dynasties are few.

One thinks of basketball's John Wooden and Red Auerbach, football's Vince Lombardi, baseball's Joe McCarthy—and Hugh Campbell.

It has been written that records are made to be broken, and that will do for 99 and 44/100ths of them, but some records are impregnable.

One thinks of Bobby Jones' United States Open, United States Amateur, British Open and British Amateur championships, all collected in his Grand Slam of Golf in 1929. One thinks of Wooden's seven straight NCAA basketball championships at UCLA—and 10 in 12 seasons—an accomplishment more incredible when one finds it included 36 straight NCAA tournament victories.

And one thinks of the Edmonton Eskimos' five straight Grey Cup triumphs, 1978 through 1982, in Canadian Football's super bowl—under Coach Hugh Campbell.

Campbell is easy to admire when his vast accomplishments as a college football player and coach, and as a professional player, coach and now general manager

HUGH CAMPBELL

continued

Coach Jim Sutherland's decision to move Campbell to wide receiver pointed the pupil's playing career in the right direction.

are recounted.

Trying to understand how he's done it is something else, something at once intriguing and exasperating, something which has to do with that originality of concept and absence of fear.

The late Jack Curtice had a fine sense of the Campbell phenomenon when he brought his Stanford team to meet the Cougars in 1962.

That year Campbell (tagged the "Phantom of the Palouse") was a senior and was catching passes for Washington State. Through more than two seasons opponents had double- and triple-teamed him with defensive backs and skewed-zone linebackers, but nobody had been able to stop him, not even the outstanding Washington Husky defenses under Jim Owens.

One writer who covered the Cougars in those days couldn't wait to ask Curtice the obvious question.

"How many guys will you put on Campbell?"

"One."

"One? Everyone else has two or three on him."

"Well," explained Curtice, "two or three haven't stopped him. So why should I embarrass two or three of my players when I only have to embarrass one?"

Campbell grew up in Saratoga, Calif., and played as a prep in Los Gatos as a receiver and then as a quarterback. In 1959 he went to Washington State as a quarterback, to work with a coach who was a decade ahead of his time as a designer and teacher of the passing game—the late Jim Sutherland.

A slender lad of no great speed, arm or physicality, Campbell wasn't making it as a frosh quarterback and was in some danger of being cut.

WSU assistant coach Bob Gambold interceded. Gambold had recruited Campbell and knew this quiet kid had special qualities. "Give Campbell his chance, 'Suds,' at wide receiver. You'll never regret it," he said.

Early in the spring practices of 1960, Suds knew Gambold was right. By the second game of Campbell's sophomore year. . . . Let Campbell tell it:

"Jim Sutherland and I were suited. He taught me something I never forgot. He didn't come with a plan and mold his players into it. He exploited the directions of their talents. . . . After the second game of my sophomore year, Sutherland changed his offense to use two wide receivers instead of one, and in another he set two split ends and a flanker instead of two wide receivers."

Another great influence on Campbell, then and now, is college basketball coaching hall of famer Marv Harshman, who spent a distinguished 40 years, in three almost equal segments, at Pacific Lutheran, at Washington State and at the University of Washington.

Harshman coached Cougar basketball when Campbell went to WSU, and moonlighted as a football scout.

"'Harsh' was a fine player and football coach in his own right, and I remember his reports. He never let details obscure the important stuff—'This is what you have to stop,'" Campbell remembered.

Then, and later in his one-year sabbatical from the Canadian Football League, when Campbell was a WSU assistant coach, he and Harshman became mutual admirers. Campbell found that Harshman's ideals and his approach to life and a coach's trade were as true and uncluttered as his scouting reports.

When Campbell graduated from WSU after the 1962 season, he had all the major receiving records of his school, indeed still has them.

That year he played in the San Francisco Shrine Game (12 catches), in the Coaches' All-America Game, and in the Hula Bowl. The following summer he participated in the Chicago Tribune All-Star Game, where the college draftees of 1963 beat the NFL champions, the Green Bay Packers.

Campbell had been drafted by the San Francisco 49ers. John Brodie would be throwing chain-breaking passes to him because the Niners' grand old possession receiver, Billy Wilson, was retiring. Because of his superb hands and his mystifyingly consistent ways of getting open, Campbell was the ultralogical successor to Wilson.

But the Niners, then in the latter coaching days of Red Hickey, cut Campbell just before the regular season began.

"I had gotten open deep a lot in scrimmage and in preseason games. A couple of times someone caught me before I could score. I guess Coach Hickey only wanted a guy who could go all the way, all the time," said Campbell.

"I wasn't too outspoken then. I felt like telling Hickey that if I could get first downs around the eight-yard line, why couldn't the coaching staff figure out how to get it across from there?"

It might be recalled that Hickey devised the Niners' three-quarterback rotation on successive downs, an innovation which utterly failed, especially for Brodie.

"Hickey would stay with the deal even if we were losing, even if we were losing in the fourth quarter," recalled Brodie some years back.

So if the Niners had the ball on their 20, and trailed Chicago by 20, and it was third-and-20 with 20 minutes to go, it was Brodie's play because he was the third-down quarterback.

Now a frequent casher on the Senior PGA Tour, Brodie's retirement from the NFL in good health may be in part due to the quick release and evasive moves he perfected as Red Hickey's third-and-long quarterback.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders of the CFL had had great results from Washington State Cougars who'd played under not your opponent."

When he left Regina for his first head coaching job, he was proudest of two things: First, the Grey Cup success which the Roughies had been trying for since 1910; second, for every 5.3 passes he caught, one was for a touchdown.

The coaching job was at Whitworth College in Spokane, where many years had passed since the Pirates were a power in their conference. During Campbell's seven-year stint, Whitworth went 34-30. And if you were to compare Whitworth's resources to those of most of its opponents, you would know just what a marvel that record was. A "full ride" at Whitworth meant there was no more room on the bus.

Edmonton's directors, having observed Campbell as a summer "guest coach," called him north in 1977. Hugh immediately coached the Eskimos to the Grey Cup final in Montreal, where they lost, 41-6, to the Alouettes in a Keystone Kops game in Olympic Stadium.

A freezing rain had covered the artificial turf with ice. The hosts thawed the field with a chemical that rendered the football and the footing slicker than a peeled owl. Turnovers abounded. Hand-backs from center to quarterback went over the signal caller's shoulders after squirting through his hands. Later it was suggested that Montreal had illegally gunned industrial-caliber staples into the quarterback's shoe soles for better traction.

But Campbell was interested in progress, not excuses.

He assembled outstanding assistants, all of them current or past CFL head coaches or executives, such as Don Matthews, Cal Murphy, Joe Faragalli and Mike Riley.

"I learned some things," Campbell recalled. "Learned that guys from scrappier, smaller schools like WSU do better in the CFL than guys from big schools like USC. Learned that an outstanding, undersized player, if you played him right, could help you win championships."

Middle linebacker Dan Kepley won three defensive "Schenleys" at 6-1 and 218 (a Schenley is an award given to the CFL's MVP, top lineman, top Canadian, and top defensive back).

"We changed our defense from the usual CFL four-man line to a five [adding a stand-up defensive end or outside linebacker]. That position also won a Schenley four of five years," Campbell explained. James Parker, a former Wake Forest noseguard at 5-11, 215, was the fifth man in that Campbell defensive scheme, performing a lot like Hugh's old pal Garner Ekstran of the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

yardage and touchdown champion with 16,116 yards in 13 seasons, a 5.0-yard average and 134 touchdowns. Previously, WSU had provided the Roughriders with defensive end Garner Ekstran, smallish, quick, tough and smart—a perennial all-star whose big-play style must have been in Campbell's thoughts years later when he introduced defensive innovations into the CFL during his unprecedented coaching success at Edmonton.

The Roughies won their only Grey Cup in 1966, one of Campbell's six seasons playing in the CFL. In that comparatively brief time, he broke every Saskatchewan record for receiving yardage, frequency and touchdowns, and many CFL single-season records.

Regina, Sask., then as now, wasn't the Camelot of the CFL, but Campbell recalls his days as a Roughie with affection.

"We had Ekstran and Reed and an amazingly resourceful quarterback, Ronnie Lancaster, and I admired Coach Eagle Keys.

"Eagle Keys always made it crystal clear that he was utterly devoted to the job getting done and highly indifferent about who got credit for it. If you worried about taking credit you let ego get in your way and then you outmaneuvered yourself and

"Our staff got along," Campbell said. "Each coach was responsible for his own sector. We didn't interfere much and they weren't yes men. We made our game fit our guys. The five-man line with the full-time pass rusher was part of that."

"We were way more aggressive on defense than the CFL had seen," he continued. "We were able to foil a lot of blocking rules. On offense, as on defense, we wanted big plays and we wanted to be unpredictable. We might run on second-and-seven. We might pass on second-and-one. We might even pass on third-and-one. [Canadian football is a three-down game.]

"We used our imports [the limit was 13, plus two quarterbacks] for key positions only. None in the offensive line. We concentrated our Americans on defense—at quarterback, running back and wide receiver."

Those concepts, the staff work and the recruiting brought the Eskimos five straight Grey Cup titles. Earl Grey donated the chalice in 1909, but previously no team had won it more than three straight years.

Hugh Campbell coached splendid players at Edmonton such as quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Warren Moon, and WSU grad Brian Kelly. At 5-9 and 170, "too small" for the NFL, Kelly's 10-year receiving marks with the Eskimos are immense: 575 catches, 11,169 yards, 97 touchdowns. Kelly's 18 touchdown catches in 1984 broke the CFL single-season record held by—you guessed it—Hugh Campbell.

In 1983, finding the offer of the USFL Los Angeles Express hard to refuse, Campbell became head coach. Thence to the Houston Oilers of the NFL. He coached the Oilers two years, 1984 and 1985.

He returned to Edmonton as general manager in 1986. In 1987 the Eskimos, with CFL quarterbacking legend Jackie Parker as head coach, won the Grey Cup again.

Campbell's affection for Washington State has never diminished. He helped discover and recruit consensus All-America running back Rueben Mayes, from North Battleford, Sask., who as a New Orleans Saint was NFL Rookie of the Year in 1987.

Indeed, Hugh Campbell found the love of his life at "Old Wazoo". Hugh and Louise Campbell have four children: Robin, 22; Jill, 18; Rick, 14; and Molly, 9. Robin's a WSU alumna and Jill is currently attending WSU. □

TO A RADAR GUN THEY LOOK EXACTLY ALIKE.

Forget the fact that the car on the left is a legendary performance car. And that the one on the right is a wagon.

A radar gun doesn't notice minor details like that. It focuses on only one thing: speed.

And from that point of view, the Porsche 944 and the Volvo 740 Turbo Wagon look remarkably similar.

In fact, in repeated quarter-mile tests, they came up with virtually identical numbers—both in elapsed time and miles-per-hour. In 0-60 tests, the Volvo wagon actually came out ahead of the Porsche.* Which is no small feat for any car, much less a wagon.

It's no wonder Road & Track magazine called the 740 Turbo Wagon the closest thing to a five-door sports car.

Which all goes to prove that the Volvo 740 Turbo Wagon is something very rare indeed:

A wagon that's actually worth owning for what it packs up front.

1989 Nebraska Basketball School

All Sessions at the Air Conditioned
Bob Devaney Sports Center

BOYS CAMP I (May 28-June 1)

For boys entering the fifth grade through boys entering their senior year in high school. All campers will be grouped according to their age and ability. Each day of camp will include instruction on individual offensive and defensive techniques, team concepts, and actual game competition.

BOYS TEAM CAMP I: CLASS C2, D1 and D2 SCHOOLS (June 4-8)

This week is for class C2, D1 and D2 schools and only high school age boys can participate. Each school must have a minimum of 6 players (we recommend 8), and a member of the high school's basketball staff will coach the team during the week. Each team will have daily practice situations. There will be lecture periods conducted by the Nebraska Basketball Staff. Each school may bring more than one team and if a school would like to participate in the A, B and C1 Camp, please feel free to do so (we recommend this if you have a talented group of players).

BOYS ELEMENTARY/JR. HIGH DAY CAMP (July 10-13, Grades 4-8)

For boys entering the fourth grade through boys entering the eighth grade. There will be a morning and afternoon session with the noon meal being provided. This is a day camp and each camper must provide for his own lodging. The morning session will begin at 9 a.m. and the afternoon session will end at approximately 3:30 p.m. Instruction will be given on individual offensive and defensive techniques as well as team concepts. Each camper will play 3 or 4 games per day.

SPECIALTY CAMP I: BIG MAN (June 8-10, Grades 8-12)

The Husker Big Man's Camp is designed for the inside player and will concentrate on teaching moves such as the drop step power lunge, up and under move, the baby hook, and the bounce step jumper. In addition, drills to improve agility, foot quickness, and jumping ability will be stressed to improve rebounding technique. Video analysis will be used to assist development of skills.

SPECIALTY CAMP II: SHOOTING (June 15-17, Grades 7-12)

The Husker Shooting Camp will emphasize individual instruction with fundamental skills of shooting. The power lay up, the hook shoot, and the jump shot will be stressed. Fundamental emphasis will be on offensive moves without the basketball, footwork for shooting quickly and efficiently, proper alignment of hand, wrist, and arm, developing of proper arc, increasing range, and shooting off the dribble or off of a screen. Video analysis will be used to assist development of proper shooting technique.

BOYS TEAM CAMP II: CLASS A, B, C1 SCHOOLS (June 18-22)

This week is for Class A, B and C1 schools and only high school age boys can participate. Each school must have a minimum of 6 players (we recommend 8), and a member of the high school's basketball staff will coach the team during the week. There will be lecture periods conducted by the Nebraska Basketball Staff. Each school may bring more than one team and we do allow Class A, B and C1 schools to enter their sophomore or junior varsity teams in our Class C2, D1 and D2 team camp.

A SALUTE TO HUSKER ACADEMIC-ATHLETIC LEADERS

Mark Blazek

Jeff Jamrog

Virginia Stahr

Stephanie Bolli

Tom Schlesinger

Lori Sippel

Academics are an important part of the student-athlete's career at Nebraska. The Huskers have led the Big Eight in academic honors for athletes for many years and this year is no exception. Over 100 Husker athletes were named to the Big Eight Honor Roll in 1987-88. To qualify, each letterperson must have posted a 3.0 grade point average during the 1987-88 year. Of 521 athletes, Nebraska led the Big Eight with 120 named to the honor roll, followed by Iowa State (83), Missouri (67), Colorado (60), Kansas (56), Oklahoma State (54), Oklahoma (43) and Kansas State (38). Of Nebraska's honorees, 21 were football players.

To qualify for first-team Academic All-Big Eight honors, a player must be a starter or an important reserve and post a 2.8 GPA. Eight football players earned first-team honors, and 34 other Huskers from 17 sports also proved that academics and athletics can go hand in hand.

The next step up is to be named to the GTE Academic All-America team, where student-athletes across the nation compete for honors. To qualify, athletes must be a leading contributor to the team and post a 3.20 cumulative GPA. Nebraska saw six athletes earn such honors: Mark Blazek and Jeff Jamrog from football; volleyball player Virginia Stahr; Stephanie Bolli from the Husker women's basketball team; gymnast Tom Schlesinger; and softball All-American Lori Sippel. In addition Schlesinger and Sippel were named Nebraska's Conference Medal Award winners for the 1987-88 academic year as seniors who have had an outstanding record in athletics and academics.

The University of Nebraska salutes these athletes who have found success both in the classroom and in athletics.

Drugs and the Athlete... a losing combination.

Athletes command a unique position in American society and in societies throughout the world. Many view the athlete as a hero who strives for perfection. The public expects excellence, and to achieve these high standards and thereby maintain public favor, the athlete must maintain peak alertness, responsiveness, efficiency and coordination.

A small segment of the athlete population has resorted to the use of drugs (e.g., anabolic steroids, amphetamines and various "street drugs") purported to improve physical performance. The decision to use drugs to improve physical performance, for the most part, has not been based on sound information and could have dire physical consequences for involved individuals. Further, such usage violates NCAA ethical principles.

The ethics of sport need to be emphasized, particularly in that taking drugs to improve performance constitutes cheating. There is need to reemphasize the fact that the important thing in sport is to compete honorably; to win at all costs is a contradiction to the meaning of sport.

The athlete should not carry all the blame for the situation. Coaches, trainers and the medical profession need to share some of this burden, as does the public, for expecting and frequently demanding a winning effort every time.

Society has placed a number of demands upon the athlete. If one believes that athletes and the general public will make sound judgments most of the time when provided with the necessary information, educating athletes and others about drug effects, appropriate drug use and the skills needed to cope with such problems could have substantial benefits to the individual and to society.

The NCAA has produced a pamphlet entitled "Drugs and the Athlete...a losing combination," which includes the latest and best information available on the problem of solving drugs in sports. To order, send $3 for 12 copies to: NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

MEN'S SWIMMING

Head Coach: Cal Bentz
Career Record: 86-50, 11 years
Diving Coach: Jeff Huber
Assistant Coaches: Rick Paine, Keith Moore
1987-88 Record: 8-1
Conference Finish: 1st

Quickfact: The Huskers have won nine-straight conference titles and their 10th-place finish at the 1988 NCAA Championships was the best in school history.

The 1987-88 season was unquestionably the most successful in school history. A near-perfect dual season, a ninth-straight Big Eight title and their first Top 10 finish saw the Nebraska men's swim team get a foot in the door with the national elite.

It would be hard to blame head coach Cal Bentz and his Huskers for being greedy. While some teams may be content with taking success one step at a time, Bentz has his team looking to seize the opportunity in order to swim with the best.

"We were very pleased with last season," he said. "To finish in the Top 10 was a great accomplishment for this team but we feel with the talent and experience we have returning, now is the time for us to move even higher."

To do that, Bentz has assembled some of the nation's best swimmers in the Cornhusker camp as they look to challenge the traditional powers again this season.

Leading the way for the Nebraska swimmers are sophomore Peter Williams, the world record holder in the 50-meter freestyle, and senior Mike Irvin, a three-time All-American in the individual medley. All-American divers Lewis Meyers and Lawrence Roddick, a U.S. National Team member, provide coach Jeff Huber and the Huskers with one of the most talented duos in the country. In all, the Huskers return 12 athletes with NCAA meet experience and honors to the 1988-89 edition.

The Huskers will have a chance to showcase their talent at home when they host one of the most unique meets ever held in the United States, Dec. 1. Prior to the Husker Invitational, five of the nation's Top 10 teams from a year ago will battle in a meet featuring sprint races only. Included in the field are Nebraska, UCLA, Michigan, Southern Methodist and defending national champion Texas.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

Head Coach: Ray Huppert
Career Record: 84-40, 13 years
Assistant Coach: Kelly Nordell
1987-88 Record: 7-2
Conference Finish: 2nd

Quickfact: The Huskers have won eight-straight dual meets at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

After losing their hold on the Big Eight championship last season, it may seem as though the Nebraska women's swim team has backed itself into a corner. In recent years, the Huskers have enjoyed conference supremacy and national respect with three Big Eight titles and Top 20 rankings.

Last year, however, not only did Kansas take home the conference title, the Huskers finished a dismal 39th at the NCAA Championships.

For head coach Ray Huppert and his team, it's time to come out a-fightin'. And that, he says, is what they intend to do.

"This is an important year for us," Huppert said. "We have to go out and prove to everybody and to ourselves that we are a much better team than we showed at the end of last season."

In all fairness, the Huskers have sported one of the youngest teams in the nation the past two seasons and last year saw injuries slow the lineup second semester. Now as he looks at the 1988-89 season, Huppert is as optimistic as ever about avoiding a repeat and bringing Nebraska back into national prominence.

"I really think that this year's team has as much talent as any team that we've ever had at Nebraska," he said. "We have people who have been in the program and have gotten a tremendous amount of experience. Now they are showing the desire and determination to become even better both individually and as a team."

Among the athletes returning this season include Big Eight champions Carole Johnson, Terri Long, Mindy Matheny and diver Julie May.

NU Cross Country Youth, Experience Look to Big Eight Meet

by Bill Doleman

Oh so close. In Jay Dirksen's first five seasons as head coach of the Nebraska cross country program, only his 1985 women's team has managed a conference title. Since then, his teams have only come close, including a pair of runner-up finishes last season. While consistency is a key in any sport, Dirksen and his Huskers will be looking to break the pattern and move into the top spot when they compete in the Big Eight Championships in Stillwater, Okla., on Oct. 29.

Men's Team Young and Talented

And then there were three.

Last year's men's team proved to be one of the best-ever at NU after a 13th-place finish at the NCAA Championships. Experience was the key as the Huskers' lineup saw eight returning lettermen, including five fifth-year seniors, on the roster.

Such is not the case this season. Of the 12 runners on this year's squad, none are seniors and only three are returning lettermen. However, looks can be deceiving. Dirksen is banking on the fact that seeing is believing.

"If someone looked at our situation and who we lost," he said, "they could very easily say, 'Well they can't be very good.' But we have an excellent nucleus and some talented young runners who give this team great potential."

The nucleus for this year's team is a set of twin brothers, Frank and Harold Graham. The juniors from Nebraska City, Neb., are the Huskers' most experienced runners and have competed for NU at the last two NCAA meets. One of the nation's top newcomers a year ago, sophomore Joe Kirby is the Huskers' top returning runner. Coming in 51st at the NCAA meet, he was Nebraska's No. 2 finisher and was the third freshman overall.

"There's no question in my mind that he's (Kirby) one of the top runners in the conference," Dirksen said. "If he continues to improve, he's going to be tough. He certainly has the ability to be among the top five in the Big Eight."

All is not lost with just three returning lettermen on the roster, Dirksen has added an outstanding group of newcomers that have paid big dividends in the early part of the season.

Leading the way are South Africans Jacques van Rensburg and Les-

Senior Sammie Resh and junior Jacques van Rensburg will lead the Husker runners into the Big Eight Championships later this month in Stillwater, Okla. Both teams will be looking to improve on last year's runner-up finishes.

ton Blackburn, who along with Kirby have emerged as the team's top runners in the Huskers' two meet wins at the Nebraska and Illinois Invationals.

A former junior national champion in South Africa, van Rensburg has helped offset the graduation loss of All-American Jean Verster and has captured both individual titles this season. Blackburn, according to Dirksen, "could be the difference between a good or an excellent team by the end of the season."

In addition, redshirt freshmen Tom Banks and Pat Day have shown great improvement in running as the team's fourth and fifth runners thus far.

"I'm not overly concerned that we're operating with a new group of people who aren't experienced," Dirksen said. "We don't have the depth we've had in the past, but I don't think we've dropped off much with our front runners."

"We had an outstanding meet at Illinois and really ran well as a team. Our top three runners ran a really smart race and the rest of the guys did a good job of staying close and running as a pack and that will be important for the championship meets."

Promising Women's Team Returns

While Dirksen has put together a men's team with a group of unknowns, the Nebraska women return everyone, including one of the nation's top runners, from last year's Big Eight runner-up squad.

A trio of the best runners in the conference leads the Husker squad that, according to Dirksen, "promises to be competitive with any team in the country."

The unquestioned leader of this year's team is senior team captain Sammie Resh. The first NU woman to earn All-America honors in cross country, Resh has been the Huskers' top finisher in the team's first two meets this season, finishing first at Nebraska and second at Illinois.

"You really can't say enough about Sammie and what she means to this team," Dirksen said. "She is a tremendous team leader and an outstanding runner. There's no question that she's one of the best we've ever had here."

In addition to Resh, juniors Juliet Prowse and Michele Marthaler round out the trio of runners that could compare with any team in the country.

"We've had some really good teams here that never had three people this good," he said. "One thing about this team is that everyone on the roster is a good runner. We've had teams in the past that weren't as strong past the top seven."

Also returning from last year's Big Eight team are Susie Larson, the team's most improved runner, and sophomore Kelly Loos. Both were pleasant surprises for Dirksen a year ago and will add experienced depth this season.

But the biggest impact on this year's team lies in the emergence of freshman Tracy Smith. The Milton, Ontario native has finished as the Huskers' No. 3 runner in the team's first two meets.

"I'm really excited about our chances," Dirksen said. "We have as good a chance as anybody for the conference title and I think we could do well nationally if we run to our potential."

Maybe it's time you had one for your telecommunications system.

Imagine what it would look like if a football team decided to "wing it" out there on the field without a game plan. It would look pretty silly, wouldn't it?

Well, that's exactly what many companies do when it comes to planning and designing telecommunications systems. The results are costly.

That's where we come in to play. You see, we can show you the most cost effective way to handle your information. No matter how unusual your needs are. In fact, we're the telecommunications consultant to the Super Bowl and a number of NFL teams. We provide dozens of communication systems that enable the press to get their stories out, spotters to talk with their coaches, and stadium security to talk to each other.

If we can do all that, just think of what we can do for you.

Isn't it time you had a game plan for your telecommunications system? Get in touch with us. Your GTE Account Manager will be glad to help you draw one up.

Monarchs and milkweed: Not one without the other

By Mary Emanuel
Office of University Information

For a monarch butterfly a milkweed plant is a nursery. But for many humans, a milkweed plant is a nuisance.

These divergent views of milkweed have led to diminished numbers of the distinctive orange and black butterflies, according to Ronald M. Young, an entomologist and the Curator of Public Programs at the University of Nebraska State Museum at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL).

"Milkweed plants are the only places where monarchs lay eggs. The only food source for the monarch larvae is milkweed leaves. Since most humans consider the milkweeds a noxious plant they do their best to eliminate them through chemicals and by mowing. And that means there aren't as many monarchs around as there were 20 years ago," Young says.

It is important for people to understand that their efforts to eradicate milkweed plants has a lethal impact on complex plant/animal interrelationships which have evolved over millions of years, according to Young.

"Everything in nature has its place. Too often we alter nature only to discover later we have done much more harm than good."

And those alterations made by man have ripple effects. For instance, Young noted, there is a chemical compound in milkweed ingested by monarchs that make them singularly distasteful to predators. "When a bird eats either an adult or larval monarch it makes them vomit. Each generation of young birds learns the hard way that when they eat a monarch larvae or adult they will get sick."

The protection afforded to monarchs from milkweeds also benefits the viceroy butterfly which closely resembles the monarch. Although viceroys don't make birds sick, birds made wary by their experiences with monarchs stay away from viceroys.

"If we don't have monarchs, we will have fewer viceroys," Young said.

Every autumn monarchs fly south for the winter to one of several sites in the mountains of central Mexico. They congregate there by the millions in a semi-hibernated condition until the spring when they fly back north.

"Today we are just beginning to learn specific details about the annual migration of monarchs to Mexico," Young said.

The Mexican government has designated the winter sites as protected areas. Commercial activity, such as logging, has been banned and armed guards are posted to ensure the monarchs remain undisturbed.

"This has actually been an economic boon to the area," Young said. "Money generated from eco-tourism, from people visiting the sites, is greater than money generated from logging and grazing activities. Other Latin American countries have adopted similar practices. Large portions of Costa Rica are national parks that people from all over the world come to see. These models of rational conservation are examples of how we can work with nature instead of against it."

Adult monarchs live for four to six weeks. There are several generations of monarchs born during the spring and summer months. Young said the final summer generation undergoes a genetic change which diverts energy away from reproduction into the production of fat tissue which is stored for the long flight south.

Monarchs that live east of the Rocky Mountains stay in Mexico over the winter months. Those that live west of the Rockies winter in southern California.

In the spring, monarchs drift north with the advancing warm weather to lay eggs. Each succeeding generation travels further north, some as far as Canada, Young said.

"The Entomological Society of America currently is lobbying Congress to designate the monarch as the national insect. If the monarch achieves national symbolic status, it may, like the bald eagle, become a symbol that will make us consider perhaps not obliterating the species."

On a personal level, individuals can do a lot to promote monarch butterfly populations, according to Young. "I saw a great bumpersticker the other day. It said, 'Take a butterfly to lunch. Plant a butterfly garden.' You can plant a milkweed or two in your garden," Young said. "And if you want other kinds of butterflies too, you can plant a wide variety of plants."

Black swallowtail butterflies like Queen Anne's lace. Other butterflies like columbines, black-eyed Susans, sunflowers, butterfly weed, mallow, and blue salvias.

"What I'm really talking about is a healthy and pleasant habitat for humans, too. We have to get beyond justifying the value of a species on the basis of what it can do for us. That kind of primitive thinking has gotten us into the environmental mess we're in now. We hold the future of every species on Earth in our hands," he said. "And that includes us."

Face

Thanks to the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery and the Nebraska Art Association (NAA) thousands of Nebraskans will come "Face to Face" with works of some of the most respected artists in the world.

"Face to Face" is a traveling exhibition of 20 portraits to be displayed publicly for one month each in McCook, North Platte, Lexington, Kearney, Aurora, Columbus, Scottsbluff, Nebraska City, and possibly Grand Island.

The show was at the High Plains Museum in McCook through September and will be in North Platte at the Mall through October.

Artists represented in "Face to Face" are Milton Avery, Thomas Ball, Max Beckmann, Alexander Brook, John George Brown, Mary Cassatt, Jean Clouet, Jean DuBuffet, Daniel Chester French, Marsden Hartley, Charles Bird King, Gaston Lachaise, Corban Le Pell, Alice Neel, Diego Rivera, Joseph Stella, Andy Warhol, and Grant Wood. Also included are two works by unknown American and Spanish artists.

The works include prints, etchings, drawings, oils, and bronze and marble sculptures.

Daphne Deeds, curator at the Sheldon Gallery at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL), said the exhibition is an effort to share works of the highest quality from Sheldon's permanent collection with those Nebraskans whose distance from Lincoln often precludes them from visiting the gallery.

"Our philosophy is that adults and children in all parts of the state should have access to the quality of art that is available to those who live in or near Lincoln," she said.

This is the second year that Sheldon Gallery and the NAA have presented a traveling art exhibition. Last year's show, "Miniature Masterworks," was viewed by nearly 6,000 people.

"There was a tremendous response to last year's show," Deeds said. "Some people even told me it changed their lives. School children who rode 300 miles roundtrip to see the show were so impressed that we got dozens of letters with representations of their favorite pieces. An eight-year-old boy asked us to keep a job open for him at Sheldon until after he graduates from college."

By Diego Rivera

Deeds expects "Face to Face" to be equally well-received.

"There has been a lot of community involvement. Residents in each community have been trained by Sheldon docents and NAA State-wide Council Members to be volunteer tour guides for children and adult tours especially for this exhibit. Karen Janovy (Education Coordinator at Sheldon) and Rhonda Seacrest (volunteer exhibition contact person in North Platte) have worked very hard to make this exhibition a success," Deeds said.

The NAA also has underwritten some of the cost of producing the exhibition for the communities. The $5,000 borrower fee is used chiefly for transporting and hanging the show.

"If we sent a show of this quality to another museum we would have to charge between $10,000 and $20,000," Deeds said. "But we feel a commitment to doing whatever we can to help people get more involved in art."

Coached by Francis Allen, 1988 Midwest region Coach-of-the-Year, the Nebraska men's gymnastic team captured their sixth NCAA title last April at the Bob Devaney Sports Center. Big Eight Conference champs as well, the Huskers will defend both titles this season.

As Nebraska plays host to the NCAA Championships in April, four returning All-America performers, Mike Epperson, Patrick Kirksey, Bob Stelter and Mark Warburton, plus freshman Lance Ringnald, a member of the 1988 olympic team, will lead the Huskers.

The 1988 Big Eight champion Cornhuskers look to defend their conference title this season, as well as plan for their third-consecutive NCAA Championship bid. Coached by Rick Walton, the 1988 women's gymnastics Big Eight Coach-of-the-Year, the team will be led by seniors Crystal Savage and Jeanene Smith.

About the Yell Squad . . . The University of Nebraska Yell Squad's primary goal is to function as public relations personnel for the University along with promoting spirit and support for Cornhusker athletic events. During an academic year, yell squad members make approximately 100 appearances at athletic, philanthropic, community and state events. As full time students, members of the yell squad condition and practice 10-20 hours a week. Yell squad members excel as leaders in campus and community organizations and activities while maintaining high scholastic standards.

Yell Squad Honors . . .

1984-1985

1985-1986

1987-1988

Finalist as one of the Top 20 cheerleading squads in the National Cheerleaders Association College Cheerleading Championships.

1986-87

4th place regional award winner in the Universal Cheerleading Association Cheerleading Championships.

Thanks For Your Support . . . The UNL Yell Squad would like to thank the following businesses and individuals for their support of the Yell Squad by providing financial assistance for Cheerleading Camp in the summer. If you would like information about the Yell Squad or are interested in contributing, please contact: Kris Baack, 253 J Barkley Memorial Center, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE 68583-0731

You Make The Call.

O.K. Here's the situation: Early in the fourth quarter, with Nebraska up by three touchdowns and looking like a Red Steamroller, a fan stands up from his assigned seat. He decides to get a jump on the crowd and leaves the game to go to Tony & Luigi's. Did he make the right decision?

1988 NEBRASKA CROSS COUNTRY

MEN

Head Coach: Jay Dirksen (South Dakota State '68)
Assistant Coach: David Harris (Northeast Missouri State '78)
1987 Big Eight Finish: 2nd
1987 NCAA Finish: 13th

Quickfact: The Husker's 13th-place finish at last year's NCAA Championships was the best in school history. Sophomore Joe Kirby, the third freshman finisher at the national meet, is the Huskers' top returnee after placing 51st.

WOMEN

Head Coach: Jay Dirksen (South Dakota State '68)
Assistant Coach: David Harris (Northeast Missouri State '78)
1987 Big Eight Finish: 2nd
1987 NCAA Finish: No Full Team; Sammie Resh placed 29th individually (21st American)

Quickfact: Resh became the first NU woman in history to earn All-America honors in cross country with her performance. Nebraska placed three runners in the top nine at the Big Eight meet led by Resh (2nd), Juliet Prowse (5th) and Michele Marthaler (9th). All three return this season.

Some fans go to great lengths to see the Huskers.

Some Nebraska football fans drive the length of the state to watch the Huskers play. When they come, they're probably listening to KRVN Radio.

They listen to KRVN for up-to-the-minute news and farm reports, weather and road conditions and easy listening country music. On those game days when they can't make the game, they listen to it on KRVN.

To be your best in Nebraska you've got to know the turf.

That's especially true in banking. That's why First Commerce Bancshares takes such pride in the deep roots it has across Nebraska. Each First Commerce Company is locally directed and managed by people who know the needs of the area they serve. Yet each company can draw on the strength and resources of one of Nebraska's strongest financial organizations.

Together the men and women at First Commerce Bancshares are dedicated to seeing Nebraskans win on every playing field.

Cornhusker Wheel Club 1988

Automobile dealers in Nebraska are contributing a large measure of help to the University of Nebraska athletic program through the loan of courtesy cars. Like other programs which are a part of the Cornhusker booster group activities, this project enables the Nebraska Athletic Department to make greater use of its funds.

These sports-minded dealers around the state have earned a debt of gratitude from the University of Nebraska Athletic Department. They are an important part of the "team" that includes players, coaches, administration, faculty, staff, students, alumni, Husker Educational Award group, Touchdown Club, Extra Point Club, Beef Club and the courtesy car program.

DEFENSIVE MEASURES

Yards gained. Now that's a nice, clean statistic. Problem is, only one player gets credit, unless of course it's a pass play, where two players are recognized.

But with 22 players on the field, yards gained is hardly a complete reflection on what goes on down there.

In fact, a variety of offensive statistics may tell us who moved the ball, how far and how often, but unless we have an idea of who's doing the job defensively, we only have half of the picture.

That's where things like the PBUs and TFLs and hurries come along. There are a dozen-odd ways to statistically indicate who's doing what on defense on any given play.

What makes them particularly interesting and confusing at the same time is that defensive stats can vary greatly from school to school, where categories and criteria are often subjective.

We start with interceptions, which is for all intents and purposes the only tangible, non-subjective stat for the defense. Somebody on defense caught a pass—there are no two ways about it. Interceptions (and yards returned) is the only official defensive statistic in college football.

"Through the years, we've wrestled with the problem, but frankly, we just don't see how we could come up with uniform guidelines when such subjective decisions are involved," said Steve Boda of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. "Even for tackles . . . when it came right down to it, no one could come up with a solid definition of a tackle."

"So even though almost everybody is keeping it around the country, tackles is not recognized as an official statistic because there is no set definition [of a tackle]."

Interceptions and yards returned are reported to the NCAA, which lists national leaders each week (along with a myriad of offensive "yard gainers"). The NCAA's interest in individual accomplishments on defense ends there.

Even a blocked punt goes down as an offensive statistic (punts had blocked), and no credit goes to a defensive player—officially, anyway. A lot of schools keep such statistics, but you'll notice rarely, if ever, is there such a thing as a league leader in punt-blocking or fumbles caused.

Tackles, of course, is the most oft-quoted defensive statistic.

But there are tackles, and then there are tackles.

When a ball carrier is stopped, it only makes sense that a defensive player gets credit for it. But often the question is, which player?

Many schools answer: All of them. At least all of the players who help out.

"That's the idea, team defense," said Southern California defensive coordinator Chris Allen.

Said Texas-El Paso head coach Bob Stull: "We always want our guys swarming to the ball, and if they get there, they should get credit for it."

In fact, two or three players may be credited with an assisted tackle on each play, and another gets the "solo" tackle.

"It's so doggone subjective," said Dennis LaBissoniere of the Big Ten office. "We just keep leaders of what the schools report to us when it comes to defensive stats."

"Each school does it a little bit differently, and a lot of times the stats at one place just doesn't mean the same thing as at another."

And taking that point a step further, the stats at one place don't always mean the same thing even at the same school over a period of time.

The criteria for defensive statistics can change with the personnel on the coaching staff, the stat-keeping staff, the sports information staff, and even between home and road games.

For years at Ohio State, Woody Hayes' staff would handle defensive statistics with a Sunday film review. "But the week of the Michigan game, those stats would go by the wayside, because the coaches didn't take time to grade the film," said D.C. Koehl, who has had a hand in keeping Buckeyes statistics for nearly two decades. "With Woody, from the moment they walked off the field after the previous game, all of their time and energy would be devoted to Michigan. And that meant no defensive statistics for the previous game."

Some schools take the National Football League approach. Others don't.

"We generally will give one tackle and one assisted tackle per play," Koehl said. "For a home game, I feel very comfortable with what we have. But on the road, we pretty much accept what the home team stat crew gives us on the sheet."

In the NFL, tackles awarded must correspond with the number of ball carriers in a game—it's a mathematical equation that must balance out as a ledger sheet. The guidelines allow for one player to be awarded the tackle and another an assist if the situation calls for it.

That seems to make a lot of sense, but with only 26 teams to worry about, such guidelines are much more easily followed, in part because NFL teams are staffed with professional or semiprofessional statisticians. With 191 teams in Division I-A and I-AA and the statisticians generally volunteers, such standardization is virtually impossible for college football, Boda feels.

continued

Besides, at many schools, statisticians in the press box are routinely overruled by coaches at Sunday film reviews.

So even though a player may be credited with six tackles on Saturday afternoon, by Monday that figure could become nine or five.

On the positive side, the coaching staff knows what to look for and is able to sort out pileups with slow-motion and stop-action replays.

On the negative side—as far as pure statisticians are concerned—coaches aren't looking only to reward tackles, but also good hustle and effort.

"You have to make contact with the ball carrier before he hits the ground to get credit for an assist," said Washington defensive coordinator Jim Lambright, describing the most common style of awarding tackles. "We expect three or four guys to get a piece of the ball carrier on every play. We want them to swarm to the ball, and this helps encourage that."

PANCAKES AND ROACHES: MORSELS FOR THE OFFENSIVE LINE

the Heisman.

But sports fans seem to be increasingly stat crazy, and while things such as pancakes and decleaters may be scoffed at by purists, they are working their way toward acceptance as examples of offensive line excellence. And commonly, such concocted stats are the only way for schools to differentiate their honors candidates from the masses of equally massive linemen.

"It's more of a fun description than anything," said Michigan State offensive line coach Pat Morris, formerly of Southern California and Minnesota. "What we have are categories for different ways you go out there and knock the heck out of a guy. That's the idea."

Last season USC tackle Dave Cadigan became renowned when he rocked Boston College for 28 decleaters . . . or something like that.

"People got a little carried away with that one," USC offensive line coach John Matsko admitted. "He had 28 aggressive blocks, but we define decleaters as one of several types of blocks. Dave had a great year, and he finished with 44 decleaters."

"We want to measure aggressiveness, and the first thing you want to do is get your guy off his feet and on the ground. We've got knockdowns and chops and movement blocks and downfield blocks . . .

the whole concept is to encourage our guys to be physical, hard-nosed, tough and aggressive.

"But for a decleater, an offensive lineman must displace the defensive lineman off the line of scrimmage—tip him over onto his back, and the offensive lineman has to finish off the block by being on top of him. That's a decleater," said Matsko, who graded his linemen the same way when he was at North Carolina, Navy and Arizona.

By and large, coaches say, such things as pancakes and decleaters are merely translations of some of the most boring and hard-to-grasp statistics in football—coaches' evaluations. Virtually every coaching staff rates its players' game performances on a scale of 1 to 100, usually by percentage of plays in which the player executed his assignment correctly or successfully.

But to say that a lineman graded out at 93, isn't nearly as interesting or imaginative as revealing that he turned his defensive foe into a pancake 15 times. Or that five times he left the lineman flat on his back with his arms and feet in the air like a dying, overturned cockroach.

Morris, who played with and has coached a dozen players who have advanced to pro football, says his favorite description is the dying cockroach.

"When you've put a guy so flat on his back that his feet go straight up in the air," he said, "you're doing OK."

—Don Borst

Call him the pancake man. Nobody can pile up those flapjacks like Tony Mandarich can.

There were times last season when the Michigan State All-America tackle went through as many as 15 pancakes in one afternoon.

Considering that each one weighed about 250 pounds, that means Mandarich put down some 3,750 pounds of pancakes in one day! No wonder he's widely considered a leading candidate for the 1988 Outland Trophy.

Now, if he can just kill a few more cockroaches.

Pancakes, decleaters, knockdowns, pins and dying cockroaches are very real, although unofficial, measurements of an offensive lineman's daily work. The men in the pits have little or no official statistical measures of their individual accomplishments, but pancakes (knocking a defensive player onto his back) and the like will do for now.

They aren't new. Coaches have used them for years to evaluate and to provide quasi-statistical goals for linemen.

In 1984 pancakes were supposed to help Pittsburgh tackle Bill Fralic win the Heisman Trophy. Of course, such efforts were submarined by the Panthers' 3-7-1 season and created something of a backlash from the voters, who were unimpressed with such a contrived statistic. Fralic did not even get the Outland Trophy or Lombardi Award for outstanding linemen, much less Timberlands just seem to get better with age. You see, what makes them wear well is what makes them look good.

As time goes by you'll notice that the solid brass eyelets are still in place, and still shining. The leather uppers will certainly have earned some memorable nicks and scars, but the nylon hand stitching will still hold. As will the rawhide laces.

And if some day years from now you have to replace a lace, we hope you won't feel that the new one harms your Timberlands' appearance.

DEFENSIVE MEASURES

continued

D. Strohmeier/FOCUS WEST

Another of the "unofficial" defensive stats is the pass broken up (PBU).

Often, tackles are broken up into the "first hit" and "assist" categories. Many schools call the first hit a "solo" tackle, even though two or three or four other players may receive credit for an assist. Also, it is not uncommon to see more solo tackles credited than total ball carriers in the game.

When a tackle is made behind the line of scrimmage, the plot thickens. It is those TFLs (tackles for loss) or TBLs (tackles behind line) that often can gain a player some added attention, because a handful of TFLs would indicate he spent an unusual amount of time in the opposing backfield.

Such plays are also counted as tackles, and often the credit for a TFL is split between two players.

As for quarterback sacks, some schools count them as tackles for loss and others count them separately. And some keep track of near sacks.

"We give our guys credit for hits on the quarterback," said USC's Allen. "We want our guys to be extra-aggressive, but not overaggressive. And every time the quarterback gets hit legally, he'll remember it."

"He needs to feel you there, and if you're getting in his face, even if you don't sack him you're making a contribution to the defense, so we keep track of those. And if you hurry him into throwing before he wants to, or make him alter his throw, we have a category for that, too."

"Hurries" are becoming almost as common as TFLs—and talk about your judgmental statistic, some schools maintain that hurries can only be awarded when a quarterback's pass is incomplete, and others say that doesn't matter.

The primary factor in reporting statistics is consistency, and with defensive statistics it simply isn't there.

Boda, a self-described "graybeard historian" of NCAA football and statistics, said, "I don't see colleges reporting and recording official defensive statistics in the very near future.

"There are too many variables. Players are always moving and how does one determine exactly how much credit a player should receive when a runner goes down? Or if a ball carrier goes out of bounds, should the nearest player receive credit?"

"Another thing is that with the different defensive systems, different players are going to get more tackles depending upon what position they play in what system, rather than how effective they are individually," Boda said.

"And it could be very misleading. When a team has an exceptionally strong defensive end, for instance, opponents would have a tendency to run away from him—he might not get as many tackles as the players on the other side, but he might be a better player."

"It's the same way with passes deflected. Interceptions, too, maybe, but at least that's something that is objectively measurable. Those things are not a problem with offensive statistics, because measuring yards gained is all in black and white."

True, but what about the offensive linemen, those givers of time and space for the yardage-makers? □

TIPS ON SHOOTING SPORTS

In all photography, light is the basic element with which you work. It determines what film you use, what apertures and shutter speeds you choose...even the lens you select. Proper lighting can make a common subject great; bad lighting can ruin the best sports shot.

Films are rated according to their sensitivity to light. Somewhere on the film canister, you'll see the letters ISO and a number from, say, 25 to 1000. That number is the film speed, and the higher it is, the more sensitive the film is to light. Generally, fast or highly sensitive filmstocks are also more grainy than their slower, less sensitive brothers. This characteristic can be used for artistic ends, but most photographers like the finer resolution of slower films.

Choosing the right filmstock depends on a number of variables. If you're shooting dune buggies at noon on the Mohave desert, an ISO 25 or 64 film will do just fine. In fact, you might have trouble using an ISO 160 or 400 film: it might be too sensitive to light, forcing you to use very small apertures or very high shutter speeds. If you're going to be shooting a football game on a dull grey afternoon in December, though, you'll need all the speed you can get, especially if you want to use the faster shutter speeds to freeze action.

If you're shooting black and white film, you've got a good deal of flexibility. B&W has a great deal of latitude: you can be off as much as two f-stops from the correct exposure and still get a decent negative. Color films, both negative and slide, unfortunately have less latitude. If you're off by more than about one-half of an f-stop, you'll begin to see a color shift.

B&W has another advantage, too. The film can be "forced," or exposed as if it had an ISO rating of two or three times its actual number. Your photo lab can compensate for the forced underexposure by "push processing," or extending the developing time. (Among the color films, Kodak's Ektachrome slide film can be forced and push processed.) If the sun hides behind the clouds and you decide to force a film, remember to expose the entire roll at the forced ISO number. Since the compensation is done in the developing process, you can't correct partially forced rolls of film!

What do you do if you load a film that's too sensitive for the light conditions? The best answer is to use an inexpensive accessory called a "neutral density" filter, which mounts in front of your lens and reduces the amount of light passing through to the film. ND filters are available in strengths that reduce exposure by one to three f-stops.

While B&W film is versatile, most photographers prefer to shoot color. Color negative films, which produce prints, are available in speeds up to ISO 1000, and many have a latitude of one f-stop with acceptable results. Color positive film, used to make slides, has less latitude, but there's one filmstock—Kodak's P800/1600—that's designed to be forced and push processed. You can actually shoot this film at ISO 3200!

Sooner or later, though, you're going to be shooting indoors. If you supplement inadequate indoor lighting with electronic flash, make sure that you choose a color film that's balanced for daylight. (If you use daylight film under tungsten lights indoors, you'll notice a decided shift toward the red in all the colors.) Use a tungsten-balanced film for correct color values when shooting indoors. Fluorescent lighting is something of a problem, but using daylight film with an FL-D filter provides a pretty good answer.

Big Island of Hawaii
recreates a royal tradition of hospitality

Waikoloa, on the Big Island of Hawaii, is where the kings and queens of old Hawaii used to vacation. They knew...the water, the weather, the beach, the hospitality. In old Hawaii, Waikoloa was the best.

Today, that royal tradition has been recreated at the Royal Waikoloan. Here you will discover the true Hawaii, and this is just a sampling of what you might experience.

THE ROYAL LUAU hula is performed by authentic Big Island halau. The music, dance, food and costumes create a picture from the past.

PANIOLO ROUNDUP takes place on what was once part of the largest individually-owned ranch in the U.S., and the steaks are barbecued as the Hawaiian cowboys did and still do it.

THE HUKILAU is a beachfront cook-out, and guests share in the fun of netting the fish. Picture yourself in an outrigger canoe, chasing the catch into the net.

A BACKYARD PARTY gives you the local-style good times of Hawaii today with music, food, arts, and crafts. Some of the best craftspeople on the island stop by.

You will feel the Aloha spirit here, and you will leave fulfilled, knowing you have experienced the true Hawaii.

KEEPING THE TEAM IN GEAR

Rod Searcey

by Dave Petruska, Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen

It's a question that has stumped the experts for years, as much a puzzler as "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" or "How many angels can dance on the head of a pin?"

For expert analysis, a call was made to Stanford University's equipment manager, Steve Hishon, who gladly gave his advice.

The question? Did you really need to ask? How do you get those nasty grass and blood stains off those white football uniform pants?

Between laughs, Hishon explained the easiest part of his job at the Palo Alto, Calif., campus.

"We use an industrial-size washing machine and put the pants through a soap cycle," he said. "Then we add a protein enzyme cleaner to break down the blood and grass. We run the enzyme cleaner for about 45 minutes to an hour. Then we have another soap cycle and then we rinse. On our game uniforms, we never use chlorine bleach. That will turn the pants yellow. We use an oxygen bleach, something like Biz, to get them their whitest."

It's a dirty job, doing a football team's laundry, but someone's got to do it. It falls under the direction of an equipment manager, just one of the myriad functions he performs or supervises during an average day during an average football season.

The equipment manager is one of the ordinary people standing on the sideline during a game. He'll only be on camera if a piece of equipment breaks during the game, and maybe not even then.

But don't get the impression that an equipment manager is just a hanger-on, said Southern California coach Larry Smith. He's part of any successful team. His value cannot be overrated.

"The equipment room can help generate a strong sense of morale for your team," Smith said. "Having clean uniforms and practice gear, having equipment that fits at Washington State University since 1974, said he's part of the old breed of equipment managers. Trimble said younger men are entering the field every day and many, like Hishon, are college graduates.

"A lot of the guys my age got their start in the service," Trimble said. "They worked in supply, like I did when I was in the service, and learned how to efficiently equip a large number of people. A lot of the new guys have degrees, but still many of them have come up through the ranks in a way. A lot of them were student manimmediately if he knows what he is talking about."

Trimble said his responsibilities are similar to those of most equipment managers. He is responsible for buying all the equipment the university uses, putting out the bids, knowing what's new and what's good, and trying to get the best quality for his money.

Once the equipment is purchased, he has to see that it is inventoried and stored correctly, that it is handled properly, that problems are corrected before the next practice or game, and that he has enough surplus equipment in case of an emergency.

Trimble coordinates all the people in his department, budgeting their time, handing out assignments, and deals with the coaches of all the different sports, as well as with the athletic administrators.

The interaction with the various coaches and administrators, plus the close contact with athletes in many sports, are the parts of the job that Arizona's George Birger likes the most.

Birger, 58, is grossly overqualified for his position. He has a master's degree and is a few hours short of earning a doctorate. He is a former college basketball coach and was an athletic director at several Canadian universities.

But Birger loves the desert area of Tucson, loves being around athletics, so when UA's equipment job came open, he applied for and got the job.

"I love rubbing elbows with all the administrators, getting to know all the coaches of the university," Birger said. "Sports has been my whole life and this job keeps me close to it. If another job in athletic administration opened up here, I might apply for it, but I like this job and won't mind doing it until I retire. I have a great group of people to work with and I get to interact with a lot of athletes. That's the fun part of the job."

The equipment manager needs to have a solid relationship with the players, but he can't get too buddy-buddy with them, Smith said.

"You can't have someone who is wishy-washy running your equipment room," he said. "He's got to be stern, has to keep an inventory of everything. You know how the players are, always wanting something for souvenirs or to wear around campus. Equipment is so expensive these days, you can't have people running off with things."

The hardest part of the job, Birger, Hishon and Trimble agree, is getting a football team ready for a road trip. It's a little more difficult for Trimble than for the other two right and works correctly, that's all part of the game. A good equipment manager is as important as a good player, a good assistant coach."

In the movies, the equipment manager is typecast as a former player, down on his luck, handed a job to keep him from going broke. He usually answers to the name "Pops" and has a cigar dangling from his mouth. But that's not the case these days, Smith said.

"It's much too important a job to entrust to just anyone," Smith said. "There is probably over $100,000 worth of football equipment alone to keep track of. It's a very important job."

Jack Trimble, 52, the equipment manager agers first and then got full-time jobs after they finished college."

That's how Hishon, who is 31, got his start. He was a student manager at Eastern Michigan University while working on a degree in industrial arts. When the equipment manager quit, Hishon applied for the head job and got it. He was at EMU for eight years and is in his second year at Stanford.

"I would have been teaching wood shop or metal shop, something like that, and I certainly enjoy this job more," Hishon said. "But my degree has helped me in my job. I know how things are made and it's given me some insight into how equipment is put together. I can listen to a salesman explain his product and know

because the Washington State campus in Pullman is 70 miles away from Spokane, the site of the nearest airport.

Trimble starts his preparation on a Monday by packing all the coaches' game clothing and equipment. On Tuesday, he gets all his trunks packed with the extra equipment he will need and all the equipment the training staff will need.

"We have to carry our stuff, the training staff's stuff, the film and cameras for the camera crew . . . we have to hire a 16-foot truck to get all the stuff we have to take with us on the plane," he said.

Wednesday is filled with all the work that couldn't be completed on Tuesday, and on Thursday, the truck is backed up by the locker room to pick up all the players' gear for the trip.

"We place a little bag in front of each player's locker for him to put his gear in," Trimble said. "He packs his stuff and drops it by the truck and we load it on and take it up to the plane on Friday."

The Cougars play on artificial turf and have more turf shoes in stock, but if they are playing on grass, he makes sure that a regular cleated shoe is packed. If they are headed for cold weather, he'll pack a cold weather jersey and a few extra pairs of gloves for the players who want them.

After the plane lands at its destination on Friday, the players are bused to their hotel while Trimble's staff unloads the plane.

If it's a day game, say a 1 p.m. start, Trimble and his staff get to the stadium around 8 a.m. on Saturday.

"I'm always there at least four hours before game time," he said. "If it's an away game, it's usually closer to five hours because I'm not familiar with the layout. There are so many things that can go wrong. I want to give myself enough time to fix something if it does go wrong."

After the game, Trimble reverses the process, loading up the truck, loading it onto the plane, unloading the equipment from the plane into the truck back in Spokane and driving back to campus.

"It makes for some long hours, but I don't mind," he said. "It's a great job. I love it."

Equipment maintenance is a daily job, but the equipment manager also better be handy in an emergency, or have assistants who can work wonders in a few seconds on the sideline to repair damaged equipment, Smith said.

"A good equipment manager will fix it right or he'll be able to jury-rig it safely and quickly to get that player back in the game," he said.

The No. 1 problem during a game, Trimble said, is a broken chin strap.

"You can go a full game without one breaking and then have three or four go in one quarter," Trimble said. "You inspect them before every game, but they are located on a part of the helmet that is going to be in contact. If there is a cardinal rule of football equipment, it is that chin straps break."

But as far as jury-rigging goes, forget about mother's little helper, the safety pin, said Hishon.

"You just can't use safety pins on football equipment," he said. "They just aren't strong enough. They won't hold, even if you place tape around them."

Hishon said every equipment manager carries emergency equipment, but one item he has found invaluable is a leather hole puncher.

"One thing that seems to break a lot is the strap on the shoulder pads," Hishon said. "What we do when one breaks is to punch a hole in the shoulder pad, use laces and make a temporary strap. It can be done quickly and effectively."

One thing that makes the job more difficult is the weather, Hishon said.

"Last year at Stanford we didn't have a single game in the rain and that is so much easier on your equipment," he said. "Rain's really tough on your shoes. My last year at Eastern Michigan we had about two straight weeks of rain and it took its toll on everything."

Artificial turf isn't a godsend either, said Trimble.

"It's tough on the kids, tougher on the equipment," he said. "It wears the equipment down because there is just no give. I know in our part of the country and in other areas you need it because of the weather, but I don't like it. I feel football was made to be played on grass."

Which brings up another problem. How do you get out the stains caused by artificial turf? (Yes, it can put a green stain on a uniform.)

There is no answer for that problem, Hishon said.

"Most of the uniforms are made of nylon, which is, of course, a plastic. When a player is tackled and he slides across the turf, the turf, being coarse, creates heat. What happens is you get an ever-so-slight melting of the fabric. Plastic melting into plastic. And you get a green stain that you can't get out."

Now you know. □

Sure, you could invest your hard-earned money in commodities.

There are lots of investments out there. But few offer the stability and competitive return of U.S. Savings Bonds.

John J. Crendon, President of Met Life and Chairman of the U.S. Savings Bonds Volunteer Committee.

The money you earn on bonds is hard to beat. If held for only five years, they earn variable market-based interest rates. And it's guaranteed.

Plus, bonds are fully backed by the U.S. Government. So they are one of today's safest investments.

There's more. Savings Bonds are free of state and local income taxes on the interest you earn. You can buy them where you bank or through the payroll savings plan at work. For more information, just call: 1-800-US BONDS.

U.S. Savings Bonds. They're safe. They're high yielding, and they don't need to be fed.

Most people think heart disease happens only in the elderly.

It happens in children as well. Things like rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects. Each year, nearly one million Americans of all ages die of heart disease and stroke. And 20,000 of them die from childhood heart diseases.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke with research, professional and public education, and community service programs.

But more needs to be done.

You can help us save young lives by sending your dollars today to your local Heart Association, listed in your telephone directory.

WORKING ON UNITED WAY DOES MORE THAN GET YOU OUT OF YOUR HOUSE.

IT GETS YOU OUT OF YOURSELF.

Any time of year, United Way can make very good use of whatever time and energy you can spare. We'll work hard together. Because it takes hard work and commitment to keep United Way working efficiently.

But it's worth it.

Just remember: You may lift somebody's spirits. Possibly your own.

If you want America to keep its competitive edge, do something about it.

Support America's colleges. Because college is more than a place where young people are preparing for their future. It's where America is preparing for its future.

If our country's going to get smarter, stronger — and more competitive — our colleges and universities simply must become a national priority.

Government. Business. And you. We're all in this together. Because it's our future.

So help America keep its competitive edge with a gift to the college of your choice — and you'll know you've done your part.

Give to the college of your choice.

Nebraska Trophy Winners

JOHNNY RODGERS

1972 Heisman Trophy

One of the most exciting players in the history of college football, Rodgers won the 38th annual Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding collegiate player in 1972. A two-time consensus All-America wingback, Rodgers became the Huskers' first Heisman winner as he outdistanced Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Husker teammate Rich Glover. The most dangerous player ever to wear the Cornhusker Scarlet and Cream, "Johnny the Jet" threatened to go all the way every time he touched the ball, as he averaged 15 yards per touch during his junior year, which still stands as an NCAA record. He also shares the NCAA record for the most punt returns for touchdowns in a career, seven.

MIKE ROZIER

1983 Heisman Trophy

Rozier capped an outstanding three-year career by becoming the Huskers' second Heisman Trophy winner after a phenomenal senior season that saw him rewrite the Husker rushing and scoring record book. He outdistanced Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young to win the award after piling up a NCAA-record 929 yards on the ground in the Huskers' final four regular-season games. Rozier finished the 1983 season with 2,148 yards, the second highest in NCAA history behind USC's Marcus Allen (2,342 on 403 carries in 1981). However, considering Rozier's NCAA season record of 7.8 yards per carry, he would have amassed 3,148 yards in '83 if he had carried the ball as often as Allen.

Mike Rozier became Nebraska's first NCAA rushing champion.

Johnny Rodgers broke OU's back in the "Game of the Century."

Larry Jacobson
1971 Outland Award

Rich Glover
1972 Outland Award
1972 Lombardi Trophy

LARRY JACOBSON

Nebraska's first Outland winner, Jacobson won the trophy as the defensive left tackle on the Huskers' 1971 national championship team. A Lombardi finalist, the 6-6, 247-pound native of Sioux Falls, S.D., gathered All-America and All-Big Eight honors during his senior campaign. Jacobson also excelled in the classroom and was the top vote-getter on the 1971 Academic All-America team.

RICH GLOVER

A two-time All-American, Glover capped an outstanding senior year by sweeping national honors in 1972, winning both the Outland Award and the Lombardi Trophy. Glover's Outland Award gave Nebraska the distinction of being the first school to win back-to-back Outlands, a feat that would be accomplished again a decade later by Huskers Dave Rimington and Dean Steinkuhler. The 6-1, 234-pound middle guard from Jersey City, N.J., also finished third in the 1972 Heisman balloting behind Husker teammate Johnny Rodgers and Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt.

DAVE RIMINGTON

Possibly the most decorated offensive lineman ever to play college football, Rimington became the first and only player to win back-to-back Outland Awards. As a junior in 1981 Rimington was named Big Eight Player of the Year by both wire services and won his first Outland, setting the stage for his senior year, which he capped by sweeping the 1982 Outland and Lombardi Trophies. A two-time consensus All-America center from Omaha, Neb., Rimington became the second Husker to sweep the lineman awards and his consecutive Outland honors brought Nebraska the distinction of being the only school to win back-to-back Outland Awards twice, as he duplicated Larry Jacobson (1971) and Rich Glover's (1972) feat by himself.

DEAN STEINKUHLER

Nebraska again boasted the nation's top lineman in 1983 as Dean Steinkuhler, a 6-3, 270-pound offensive guard from Burr, Neb., swept national honors by lugging home the Outland and Lombardi Trophies, giving Nebraska an unprecedented three straight Outlands and two straight Lombardis. With Steinkuhler's teammate Mike Rozier winning the Heisman, Nebraska is the only school to win the top three honors in a season, and the Huskers have done it twice, first turning the trick in 1972 when Johnny Rodgers won the Heisman and Rich Glover took home the Outland and Lombardi.

Dave Rimington
1981 Outland Award
1982 Outland Award
1982 Lombardi Trophy

Dean Steinkuhler
1983 Outland Award
1983 Lombardi Trophy

THE TOUCHDOWN CLUB OF NEBRASKA

One of the groups most instrumental in helping the University of Nebraska Athletic Department grow in the field of intercollegiate sports is the Nebraska Touchdown Club.

Contributions from TD Club members have enabled the Cornhuskers to build a fine grant-in-aid program and continued support from the Touchdown Club, and groups like the Husker Achievement Awards, the Extra Point Club, and the Cornhusker Beef Club, will insure that the Nebraska Cornhuskers will always hold a prominent place in the college sports world.

The University of Nebraska Athletic Department salutes the many members of the Touchdown Club and takes this opportunity to say a sincere "Thank You."

Touchdown Club members (as of Aug. 23, 1988) contributing $200 or more are:

Action Jackson Passes Screen Test In Husker Secondary

by Ben Boyle

If Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert were football scouts reviewing the performance of Nebraska safety Tim "Action Jackson," his play during the 1988 season would definitely receive two thumbs up.

Jackson picked up the nickname two years ago at Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College, long before the movie "Action Jackson," starring Carl Weathers, was released. But Jackson has played the leading role this season in a star-studded Husker secondary cast that currently stands 32nd in the country in pass defense. (Note: The Huskers have yielded just 5.8 yards per attempt, while five teams in the top 10 in pass defense allow more per attempt).

Individually, Jackson is tied for ninth in the nation with three interceptions in five games, but he says the best is yet to come.

"I want to improve each game because I'm looking for the perfect game," Jackson said. "I know I'll never get it because there is always room for improvement, but I keep striving for that goal."

For Jackson, that goal consists of perfection against the run and the pass. He was always considered a great safety against the run, but his pass coverage has been just as impressive this season.

"This year, I've had five passes thrown in my area, and I have three interceptions and two knock-downs," he said. "They've always said I was there for run-support first, but quarterbacks aren't throwing the ball in my area so that proves a lot."

Defensive secondary coach George Darlington has also noticed the improvement.

"Tim catches the ball real well and he has a good concept of what we're doing in both the zone and man-to-man defense," Darlington said. "Being in the system this second fall season has really helped him."

Jackson's three interceptions have been dazzling, as well as critical to the Huskers' success this season.

With Nebraska trailing Texas A&M 7-6 in the third quarter of the Kickoff Classic, Jackson stepped in front of a Bucky Richardson pass intended for Gary Oliver and returned it 19 yards to the Aggie 24 to set up the go-ahead touchdown run by Ken Clark.

Against Arizona State, he picked off a Daniel Ford pass at the Sun Devil 28, which led to a Steve Taylor 11-yard touchdown and a 9-0 Husker lead.

He then stalled an Arizona State drive into Nebraska territory with another interception, which he brought back 55 yards to the Sun Devil 32 to preserve a 30-16 lead.

His efforts against the Sun Devils earned Jackson the Big Eight Defensive Player-of-the Week award.

"Those plays were perfect, but the entire games haven't been," Jackson said. "I've been graded about 90 percent for all the games, which is an A, but I'm still looking for that perfect game."

The 'A' is for Action, but Jackson also deserves a 'C' for Consistency.

"Tim has graded pretty well and he's been a real strong contributor to our team the last two years," Darlington added.

Although Jackson has few, if any, weaknesses as a free safety, he said he still needs to do some refining.

"Some things you do well, but you don't feel you do well enough—like hitting," he said. "I'm a good tackler, but I would like to tackle even better."

That could mean even more sleepless nights for upcoming quarterbacks and receivers who have already heard what the Husker secondary is capable of.

"I think it's probably the best secondary we've played against—in terms of just being very punishing, very hard-tackling defense," said Utah State coach Chuck Shelton following the Aggies' 63-13 loss in September.

Ironically, the hardest hit of Jackson's collegiate career may have come against Nebraska.

Jackson started his career at Kansas State and saw considerable action as a redshirt freshman in Nebraska's 41-3 win over the Wildcats in 1985.

He broke up one pass and recorded five tackles, one of which sent starting I-back Doug DuBose to the sidelines for the rest of the game with Nebraska leading 24-3 midway through the third quarter.

"I didn't know who it was until I got up here, but I knocked (Doug) out of the game and he had to have stitches in his lip," Jackson said. "It was a trap play. He tried to cut back and I hit him pretty hard."

In fact, a picture of Jackson diving at DuBose hangs across the hall from Athletic Director Bob Devaney's office.

Although the photograph may have provided a glimpse of the future, it was taken before he became "Action Jackson."

"They named the movie after me and I told everyone they had to see my movie," Jackson chuckled. "A lot of people wanted to see it anyway, but I think I pushed some extra sales."

Tim Jackson punishes Kendal Smith after a short gain in the Huskers' 63-13 win over Utah State.

Switching Positions proves to be a Strong Move

by Jennifer Snyder

There are two things Willie Griffin can never be accused of, during his Cornhusker career. He has never been a weakling and he never stays at one position for a long period of time.

Griffin, a senior defensive tackle from Monrovia, California, credits his childhood for his strength and his ability to adapt to change. Growing up in Southern California was not easy and Griffin had to be tough to survive.

"It was rough," said Griffin. "Every day you had to fight to let everyone know that they can't bully you for your lunch money or beat you up just because they could. You had to fight for your rights."

But, Griffin never really liked the physical activity involved with fist fights. He would rather be physical on the athletic field, especially the football field.

"I grew up in a tough neighborhood. Playing football was fun and I could take out a lot of anger on other people," he explains. "It's a sport, so it's a competitive force. It's physical and I get enjoyment out of that."

Football is not the only sport he participates in. For his own pleasure, Griffin likes to swim, play basketball, softball and baseball—his first love.

As a youngster, he had a little league baseball coach, Mr. Croel, who inspired him to play baseball. "He kept me out of the gangs and gave me something to do every day. I would go to school and then he made me come to practice. I enjoyed that. That's how I got involved in sports."

As a child, Griffin was used to moving from house to house. As a Cornhusker football player, he is used to switching positions. He was recruited in 1984 as a tight end. During spring ball in 1987, he was converted to defensive tackle. Griffin then moved to middle guard in the fall of 1987 and lettered as a reserve. With the departure of Neil Smith at defensive tackle, he switched back to that position this season and has since earned a blackshirt as a Husker starter.

Griffin's position coach, Charlie McBride, feels he has adjusted well to the defensive line from the tight end position. "He's gone through a long process of learning defensive tackle, and he's done an excellent job.

He's very physical and aggressive which makes the transition easier.

"Willie has shown excellent improvement each week and has been one of the real bright spots in our defensive line because he has playing experience and the capabilities of being a good lineman."

Griffin also made a switch regarding which college he would attend. "I thought I was going to be either a UCLA Bruin or a USC Trojan while I was growing up. During my junior year of high school I thought I could earn a scholarship to play football so my parents would not have to pay for school. I had offers from other universities, but I chose Nebraska."

Pleased with his decision, he likes Nebraska and the people who live in the state. "There is not as much violence or drugs going on and you don't have to fear for your life when you go out on the street."

"You have to watch the crowds you go around with but what I like about Nebraska is being safe and feeling good about yourself and the people you're around."

Following his senior season, Griffin would like to give professional football a shot. If that doesn't work out, he will return to California and pursue being a fireman. But, he will not go back without some vivid memories of his college career at Nebraska.

"Getting a blackshirt at practice is the most memorable part of my career here. It meant I was number one and I didn't have to beat anyone out but myself for that spot. Scoring my first touchdown as a tight end against Illinois my sophomore year also sticks out in my mind."

If Griffin would have enjoyed throwing punches instead of hitting people on the field, his life may have taken a turn for the worse. Instead, he is being rewarded for something he likes to do. Football has given him more opportunities than being a member of a gang ever could have.

"Football gave me a full scholarship to the University of Nebraska. I like the game and I've been rewarded for playing pretty good."

Senior defensive tackle Willie Griffin stops Arizona State quarterback Daniel Ford for no gain in the Huskers' 47-16 victory earlier this season.

THE DIRECTOR'S CLUB

The Director's Club of the University of Nebraska was formed by the University of Nebraska Foundation to afford proper recognition of those alumni and friends who support the athletic programs of the University at a level above that of other boosters and to encourage others with the capabilities and interest to increase their support. The university athletic department sincerely thanks these contributors.
